REPORT ASSAILS WHITEWASHING OF WPA WASTE

Condemns Refusal to Hear Critics.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—The report of the senate committee on unemployment and relief was condemned today by two Republican members of the committee for its failure to investigate the Works Progress administration headed by Harry Hopkins.

The majority report, filed last Wednesday, absolved the WPA of graft, waste, and inefficiency. The minority views, submitted by Senators Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. [R., Mass.] and James J. Davis [R., Pa.] pointed out that the committee refused to call any witnesses who would make charges against the administration of the agency.

"Inasmuch as WPA is the principal agency conducting federal relief, this meant that unemployment relief—America's greatest single governmental problem—was to go without benefit of constructive criticism," the minority report stated.

Reveals Hit-or-Miss Program.

From Hopkins himself, the report revealed, came an admission that the allocation of funds to the states for relief was not done on a scientific or factual basis, but merely was a matter of opinion. Quizzed by Lodge at one of the secret hearings, Hopkins admitted that some areas with smaller population received more jobs than those with larger populations. He admitted, for example, that Chicago, in relation to Detroit, ought to have more jobs than it has.

"A lot of this is nothing but a matter of opinion," Hopkins testified. "If somebody else were administrating this and dividing up these 2,600,000 jobs among forty-eight states, he might do it differently."

"Those who think executive discretion of this kind is either humane or democratic are at liberty to do so," the report commented. "To us it seems a violation of the principle of giving out relief on the basis of need and a clear invitation by congress to the executive to play favorites by giving out relief money where it will help or hurt the friends or enemies of the party in power."

$185,000 for Two Pamphlets.

Hopkins' attention was called to the fact that the cost of two pamphlets, a set of phonograph records, and motion pictures, all describing the WPA, had totaled $185,000.

"Some of this was done by contract; none of it was done by relief labor," the report stated. "Mr. Hopkins defended the practice, saying it was important for the government to impart information to its citizens. He declined to answer a question as to why the activities of WPA should be printed in a more expensive style than that used to print the congressional record.

"Attention is called to the philosophy underlying this particular administrative policy. In the instances presented, which were selected at random, sufficient funds were spent for this non-relief work to have taken care of 232 relief workers for one year. This money is all spent to advertise government activities by radio, by movies and through the printed word.

"We differ sharply with Mr. Hopkins' contention that it is proper to use money appropriated in the name of relief in order to purchase more elaborate publications than are devoted to the proceedings of the congress. There seems to be only one word for this action. That word is Waste."

Hit Radio Spellbinders.

That report also hit, without naming them, at President Roosevelt, Solicitor General Robert H. Jackson, and Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes, who have made radio speeches in the last year assailing administration critics.

"Extravagant utterances in which whole classes of people are insulted and nameless individuals are lambasted over the radio, instead of being prosecuted in the courts, tend to frighten the business man, however little attention may be paid to such attacks by those who are in public life," the report said. "It is clear, therefore, that this kind of talk tends to discourage new business ventures. This in turn prevents the creation of new jobs. In the interest of creating new jobs, such talk should stop."

PRIMARY FIGHT FOR U. S. SENATE STIRS KENTUCKY

Chandler Battles to Unseat Barkley.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 24.—[Special.]—Kentucky is warming up for the greatest of the 1938 primary fights with the prestige of President Roosevelt a direct stake. Senator Alben W. Barkley, Roosevelt hand picked majority leader of the senate and champion of the court packing bill, and Gov. A. B. [Happy] Chandler are opponents for the Democratic nomination for senator.

Gov. A. B. Chandler.

When the campaign gets under way it is expected to come into full bloom as a national headliner. "It's going to be a ring tailed, rip snorting humdinger" they say in old Kaintuck. Primary day is Aug. 6.

Spokesman in Senate.

Senator Barkley, "Dear Alben" in President Roosevelt's note last July promoting him for senate leader, is administration spokesman in the senate. He keynoted at the Democratic national conventions in Chicago in 1932 and in Philadelphia in 1936.

Gov. Chandler, ambitious, youthful, and popular, says he is not running against Roosevelt, but against Barkley. His position is that he is a friend of Roosevelt, but not a "yes man" and in no wise inclined to be a rubber stamp. He holds the spending spree ought to halt and the government balance the budget, reduce the debt, and act to put men and women back to work in real jobs.

As a sample of what can be accomplished the governor points to his achievements in cutting Kentucky's debt and balancing the budget.

In several respects, the Kentucky primary has a likeness to the recent primaries in Illinois. There is a fight between two strong Democratic machines, the question of 100 per cent Roosevelt, much ado over registration, and control of election machinery in the metropolis, Louisville, and an indicated desire by many Republicans to hop the fence and take a hand in the Democratic primary fracas all points of resemblance to the recent Illinois factional battle.

Miller, Barkley Manager.

Barkley headquarters are here in one hotel, Chandler headquarters in another. Manager of the Barkley camp is Shackelford Miller Jr., for the last five years chairman of the Jefferson Democratic county executive committee. He is held in high esteem and has been spoken of for possible appointment to a federal judgeship.

The political boss, M. J. Brennan, the Pat Nash of Louisville, is backing Senator Barkley. Brennan in 1935 supported Thomas S. Rhea for governor against Chandler. When Chandler took office he lined up with the governor. With another of the

Oppose Court Interview for Young Slayer

Plans for a private interview today between Theodore Danielsen Jr. and Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court, who must decide the fate of the boy who stabbed his mother to death, will be opposed when the motion comes before the court this morning, Assistant State's Attorney Morris G. Meyers said last night.

A decision in the case is not expected before tomorrow. The boy, 15 years old, plunged a bread knife into his mother's neck last March 3 in their home at 5316 Lieb avenue. He said she shook and scratched him when he confessed having been a truant from school for ten weeks.

Interview Urged by Lawyer.

In his final argument of the four day trial on Saturday Defense Attorney Leonard C. Reid suggested that the judge talk to the defendant in chambers. Young Danielson later said he would like to do this.

"I object to the private taking of additional testimony," Prosecutor Meyers said. "It might prejudice the official record in the case, and certainly it would be unfair to the judge.

"The state has been more than fair in the conduct of this case. Informal proceedings were not objected to because the state was determined to give the defendant every opportunity to give the facts. If the defense has new evidence and the court wishes to hear it the case should be reopened according to the law and rules of evidence."

Nothing Withheld, Says Defense.

Attorney Reid said yesterday the plan for a private talk with the boy is to satisfy the court that the defense is withholding nothing.

"I think Judge Harrington might be able to learn something from the boy that could not be obtained in any other way," the lawyer said.

This procedure would be unprecedented, Reid admitted.

Young Danielsen passed a restless day in the county jail as he awaited the decision in the strange case. Fingering his necktie nervously, he said that if he sees Judge Harrington in chambers he will not ask for freedom.

"It's up to the judge," he said. "I don't know what should be done with me. I've been asked that lots of times."

CHAS. DAWES STRICKEN IN NEW YORK; PERFORM EMERGENCY OPERATION

Former Vice President Charles G. Dawes underwent an apparently emergency operation in the Roosevelt hospital, New York City, last night shortly after he was stricken in his suite in the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

Dr. Henry W. Cave, the attending physician, refused to discuss Mr. Dawes' ailment or his condition, saying an announcement would be issued today. Mrs. Dawes is with him. The Daweses went to New York last week to attend the wedding of Warren Pershing, son of Gen. John J. Pershing.

Mr. Dawes will be 73 years old on Aug. 27. His home is at 226 Greenwood boulevard, Evanston. He was a brigadier general in France during the war and served as Vice President from 1925 to 1929 and later as ambassador to Great Britain.

VOTERS REJECT 'A LION'S CAGE' FOR DRUNKARDS

Woburn, Mass., April 24.—(AP)—Voters in Mayor William E. Kane's "plebiscite" today turned down his favorite idea—carting drunks about the city in a lion's cage to curb intemperance. The proposal was defeated by a vote of 1,896 to 2,456. Other proposals on the ballot in "America's first plebiscite" were approved. They included establishment of a municipal bingo game for welfare revenue, reduction of some city employés' salaries and cutting city expenses by eliminating "unnecessary" city employés. Of the city's 10,000 registered voters, 4,699 voted.

150 N. U. STUDENTS TURN AIRLINER INTO CLASSROOM

The cabin of an airliner became a classroom for what is believed to be the first time when 125 Northwestern university students studied metropolitan and suburban development from the air yesterday. The students were taken up in six relays on an American Airline ship from the Chicago airport.

"The students were enthusiastic about the experiment," said Prof. William Bailey of the university sociology department. "They learned more in a half hour flight than they would in days spent on the ground."

Old Whiskers Sets Pace for Father Time

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—Bronx strollers shook their heads in amazement this morning when a short, swarthy man, clad in a sweater, bright green shorts, and sneakers, ran past them backward.

His long black beard and hair trailed in the wind. Nimbly he leaped over fireplugs and other obstacles as he glimpsed them over his shoulder. Dogs chased him, barking joyously at the sight. Small boys followed on bicycles.

The runner was Goliath Messiah, a native of Shirz, Persia, and an exponent of vegetarianism. He was celebrating his 72d birthday.

Mr. Messiah Explains.

At the end of a three mile backward run, which he covered in thirty-four minutes, Messiah, who was not even breathing rapidly, stopped to explain.

His vitality, he said, was the result of a diet of tree bark, fruit, green vegetables, and a pint of wine daily. Strong drink is taboo.

"I want to show that rejuvenation is possible," he said. "With proper breathing and exercise people remain young and healthy. Of course, they must eat proper food."

He Eschews Tree Bark.

Each April 24 Messiah demonstrates his theories by a public run. Last year he slowed his pace a few times to rip bark from trees, munching it as he picked up speed. Today he did not touch a single leaf and onlookers figured he might be softening.

Mr. Messiah is an agent for a Greek olive oil soap. He said generous use of his product also was an important aid to youthfulness and vitality.

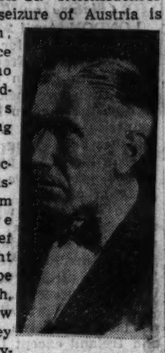
Trafic Light Rules Debate; Fast Talkers 'Beat the Red'

SALISBURY, Southern Rhodesia, April 24.—A trafic light system has been adopted by the Southern Rhodesian parliament to control the length of speeches of its members. When a member rises to speak, a green light glows on the clerk's desk. Five minutes from the time limit an amber light replaces the green. When the time is up red flashes. The only difficulty so far is that speechmakers talk so fast after the light goes amber it is impossible to take down their remarks.

Peril to Hitler Aids in Grab of Austria Bared

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, April 24.—Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's seizure of Austria is spelling death, exile, or disgrace for the men who laid the groundwork for his world stirring coup.



Franz von Papen.

The reason, according to dispatches from Sweden, where one of the chief figures has sought exile to escape danger of death, is that they knew too much. They were close observers of what passed between Hitler and Kurt Schussnigg, ousted Austrian chancellor, during their talks at Berchtesgaden, Bavaria, last February before the annexation of Austria.

Schuschnigg is in permanent confinement in Vienna and will be tried sometime next summer. Franz von Papen, former ambassador to Austria, is living at his estate in the Saar and there are rumors that the Nazis may try him for treason.

Secretary Believed Murdered.

Von Papen's two secretaries disappeared. At least one is still alive. He is Count von Kageneck, who, it was revealed today, fled to Sweden from Berlin because he feared sharing the fate of Baron Wilhelm Emanuel von Ketteler, who was Von Papen's private secretary in Vienna. Von Ketteler vanished two days after German secret police entered Austria and is believed to have been murdered.

Von Papen's own danger comes from the fact that Heinrich Himmler, chief of the Nazi secret police, is regarded as his arch enemy.

Himmler is searching the archives of the former German embassy in Vienna and the Austrian foreign ministry for evidence which, it is said, he hopes will justify the indictment of Von Papen for high treason.

Chancellery May Save Von Papen.

At the same time it is reported the activities of Himmler and his secret police have produced a feeling of revulsion in Berlin. It is suggested that a trial of Von Papen, who has been slated for ambassador to Turkey, eventually would be ruled out by the chancellory.

The conflict between Himmler and Von Papen is explained by the fact that the latter, who was German chancellor just before the advent of Hitler, represents the interests of the upper classes in Germany and has much influence with the Fuehrer. He brought Hitler and President Paul von Hindenburg together.

Von Ketteler has not been seen by his friends since March 13. Two weeks after he vanished Von Papen offered a reward of $950 for information as to Von Ketteler's whereabouts and urged an immediate search by the police. Secret police rejected the request.

HUNGARIANS CRY FOR BREAKUP OF CZECH REPUBLIC

Germans Voice Firm Autonomy Demand.

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Picture on Back Page.)

CARLSBAD, Czechoslovakia, April 24.—Two threats were made today against the existence of Czechoslovakia, the republic which was carved out of the former Austro-Hungarian empire after the world war. One came from outside the country. The other came from within.

In Budapest 20,000 Hungarians demanded the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia at a rally of the Hungarian Revision league. In this city Konrad Henlein, who is saluted as Fuehrer by 800,000 members of the Sudeten German [Nazi] party, demanded autonomy for Czechoslovakia's 3,250,000 Germans and complete equality with the Czechs.

The Hungarian Revision league adopted a resolution which said the time for changing the treaty of Trianon had arrived.

Plans Fight to Finish.

"The Hungarian society solemnly swears not to rest until this sacred aim has been fulfilled," the resolution said. It wound up with the words: "So help us God."

[The treaty of Trianon between the allied and associated powers in the world war and Hungary was signed June 4, 1920. It defined in general terms the boundaries of Hungary with Czechoslovakia, Austria, Jugo-Slavia, and Rumania, authorized Hungary to maintain an army of 35,000 and included financial, economic, and other territorial clauses.]

The massmeeting was held in a packed hall on the banks of the Danube. Several thousand were unable to obtain admittance. They gathered along the river embankment and listened to the proceedings over loudspeakers.

Czech Politicians Assailed.

The resolution, which was cheered by the Hungarians, said:

"Czech politicians with falsified maps and forged statistical data obtained upper Hungary from the great powers at the peace conference.

"The Magyar, German, and Polish population lacks even the elementary rights granted by the treaty.

"Czechoslovakia is a bridge permitting Russian bolshevism to enter Europe.

"Upper Hungary should be treated according to the principle of self-determination."

[Slovakia was the principal territory lost by Hungary through the creation of Czechoslovakia. It has an area of 18,921 square miles of Czechoslovakia's total area of 54,244 square miles. Besides 3¼ million Germans minorities in Czechoslovakia's population include 700,000 Hungarians and 82,000 Poles.]

Rejects Premier's Offer.

Henlein delivered his ultimatum on German autonomy to the Prague government at the conclusion of the convention of the Sudeten German party which takes its name from the Sudetic mountain range. He rejected any solution of the minorities problem along the lines of conciliation as outlined by Premier Milan Hodza on March 28.

At the time Hodza offered to codify existing minority laws and decrees. Subsequently the premier intimated that he and his cabinet were preparing a new minority status that will go a long way toward satisfying the claims of the Sudeten Germans.

But Henlein served notice that he will accept nothing less than complete revision of the fundamental status of the republic and that any discussion will be useless unless the Czechs accept his party's views as a basis for negotiation.

Sets Forth Conditions.

He said Czech statesmen will have to observe three conditions before they could hope to have friendly relations with the "German people":

Revision of the "mythical" historical doctrins preached by the Czechs; revision of the "obnoxious idea" that the mission of the Czech nation is to serve as a bulwark of Slavism against the German drive toward the east, and revision of the country's foreign policy which classes Czechoslovakia among the enemies of the German people.

Henlein further charged that Czech statesmen have not kept the promises they made in memoranda submitted to the peace conference in 1918; that they have violated obligations of the treaty of St. Germain, and that they have not fulfilled the legal obligations which they imposed on themselves in their own constitution.

Consequently, Henlein said, the country has become a "dictatorship of the Czech majority under a bureocracy and the police," instead of being a real democracy.

Eight Demands Listed.

"Germans should be allowed to do anything which the Czechs can do," he declared as he laid down eight demands:

1. Complete equality in the status of German and Czech nationalities [by nationality Henlein means a language group].
2. Recognition of the Sudeten Germans as having a corporate existence of their own.
3. Geographic definition and recognition of what constitutes Sudeten German territory.
4. Establishment of German autonomy in such territory in all departments of public life in so far as German groups are concerned.
5. Legal protection for Germans living outside the district.

Ask "Injustices" Be Abolished.

6. Abolition of "injustices" the Germans have undergone since 1918 and compensation for any damages.
7. Recognition and enforcement of the principle of "German officials for German districts."
8. Full freedom to proclaim a spiritual kinship with Germanism and its philosophy. [The latter point means freedom to proclaim sympathy with the Nazi philosophy.]

Henlein concluded with a denunciation of "terrorists who hate and persecute us on account of our open professions of the German National Socialist [Nazi] doctrine."

"We do not want either a civil war or a foreign war, but we can no longer tolerate a state of things which means for us a state of war in the midst of peace," he warned.

GERMANY TO JAIL PERSONS HELPING JEWS IN BUSINESS

BERLIN, April 24.—(AP)—The official Gazette today published a decree threatening a year's imprisonment for any one who helps camouflage Jewish ownership of a business establishment. The same punishment was provided for those who conduct any legal business for a Jew without making it clear that they were acting for a "non-Aryan."

The decree, signed by Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering in his capacity as director of the four year self-sufficiency plan, was understood to be aimed chiefly at the situation in Vienna. It was expected to forestall any attempts by Jewish business men in Vienna to give their establishments "protective coloring" by putting non-Jews in front as ostensible owners.

[Mass enforcement of a boycott against Jewish establishments in the capital of Austrian Germany was started by Nazi officials Saturday when Jews were forced to picket their own stores.]

Poultry Dealer's Slayer Will Be Arraigned Today

Hezron Delaney, colored, of 839 North Sacramento avenue, a janitor who confessed he shot and killed Jerome Lazar, poultry dealer at 2515 Division street, in a quarrel over a worthless check last Thursday, will be arraigned in Felony court today on a charge of murder. Delaney said Lazar refused to return the check after he had repaid the poultry dealer in money and services.

Seek Land Lost in War

Twenty thousand Hungarians in Budapest yesterday demanded dismemberment of Czechoslovakia and revision of the treaty of Trianon. Czechoslovakia was carved out of the former Austro-Hungarian monarchy in 1918 and dark portion of map indicates the territory the old kingdom of Hungary lost at the conclusion of the world war.

BRITISH, IRISH TO SIGN AGREEMENT FOR PEACE TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Picture on Back Page.)

LONDON, April 24.—Eamon de Valera, prime minister of Ireland [formerly the Irish Free State], arrived today from Dublin to sign the new Anglo-Irish agreement which is aimed to ease the tension between the two countries and end the economic war that has been going on for six years. A crowd of 1,000 persons at Euston station greeted De Valera and his party of officials.

The agreement will be signed in the cabinet room at No. 10 Downing street, official residence of British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, tomorrow after a luncheon to celebrate the occasion.

The agreement will settle virtually all points at issue between Britain and Ireland except the status of the "six counties" of northern Ireland. The British say that remains a question to be settled between Dublin and Belfast. The Irish believe the selection of Dr. Douglas Hyde, who is a Protestant and great student of the Gaelic language, to become the first president of Ireland will go far toward smoothing the differences between Ireland and Ulster [northern Ireland].

Turkish Quakes Continue; Many Persons Camp Out

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

ISTANBUL, April 24.—Slight earthquake shocks still are being felt in central Anatolia. Even in villages which escaped damage in the big shocks last week, frightened inhabitants are camping outdoors. At Akpinar where all houses were destroyed, sixty-three school children had just left their school building before it collapsed. The government will meet the cost of rebuilding all houses destroyed.

HELP FOR JEWS FLEEING EUROPE IS ASKED OF U. S.

Propose Moving 500,000 to Palestine.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Jewish leadership of the United States proposed yesterday that this country coöperate with other nations in the removal of 500,000 Jews from central European countries to Palestine. The formal request was sent to President Roosevelt after a meeting at the Covenant club.

Approval for the creation of a Washington-London axis as the only means of thwarting anti-democratic aims of the Berlin-Rome-Tokio axis was also expressed at the meeting, which was under the auspices of the United Palestine appeal, and was attended by a thousand Jewish leaders.

Room for 100,000 a Year.

The proposal for emigration of the Jews from central Europe was described as being in harmony with President Roosevelt's call for an international commission for resettlement of political refugees. Dr. Solomon Goldman of Temple Anshe Emet, co-chairman of the United Palestine appeal, asserted the country has demonstrated its ability to absorb Jewish emigrants and, if the international commission coöperates, it can care for 100,000 refugees annually for five years.

In urging a Washington-London axis, Alexander L. Easterman, British journalist, said that Nazism will listen only to the combined voice of Great Britain and the United States.

"If these two powers will declare themselves ready to defend the democratic ideal," Easterman said, "Hitler's aim for world domination will be thwarted. British public opinion is now rapidly realizing that Hitler's seizure of Austria is the first plain indication of revival of the old German imperialistic policy of 'drive to the east' and a direct threat to the British empire."

Urges $25,000,000 Fund.

Louis Lipsky of New York, chairman of the administrative committee of the Palestine appeal, blamed the present Jewish betrayal by central Europe on the preoccupation of the liberal forces of the world with their own defenses. Henry Montor, a national director of the appeal, recommended that American Jews raise $25,000,000 for Palestine settlement and overseas relief this year.

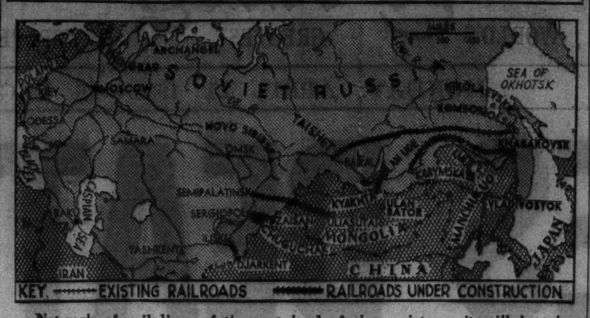
RUSSIA BUILDS RAILWAYS FOR WAR



Network of rail lines of the vast land of the soviets as it will be when additions now under construction are completed.

Fortifies Siberia

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, April 24.—Soviet Russia is fortifying the vast expanses of Siberia and other areas of the soviet union with a constantly growing railway system. Under the labor of hundreds of thousands of men, many of them convicts, strategic lines are being built as vital communications links for soviet troops in the next war.

Most important is the Lake Baikal-Amur river railroad, whose construction has been clothed in secrecy. Said to be 1,800 to 2,000 miles long, this line is north of and parallels the Trans-Siberian railroad. Reliable reports say it branches off the Trans-Siberian at Taishet and extends to Komsomolsk or Nikolaevsk.

The Trans-Siberian is being double tracked from Karymskaya to Khabarovsk, and another line will link Ulan Ude and Kyakhta. Railways are under construction also from Semipalatinsk to Uliasutai, Outer Mongolia; Sergiopol to Zaisan and Chuguchak, and Iliski to Djarkent.

Railway Report Worries Tokio.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, April 24.—Japan was disturbed today by reports that Russia plans a railway to Urga [Ulan Bator], capital of Outer Mongolia. The railway, it was asserted in Tokio, would have great military, economic, and political importance. It was considered significant that Russia has set out to construct this railway when Japan is preoccupied with hostilities in China. Some quarters said the railway would be a menace to Manchukuo.

POLISH BALLOON CROSSES CZECH BORDER; FIRED ON

WARSAW, April 24.—(AP)—Polish political circles were aroused tonight by reports that a Polish balloon had been fired on by Czechoslovak frontier guards and the balloon's two occupants arrested when they landed in Czechoslovakia.

The balloon took off yesterday from the town of Moscice for a night flight and was said to have been carried toward Czechoslovakia by a sudden change of wind. Guards opened fire when it crossed the border and arrested the occupants when the balloon landed.

Polish officials have asked return of the balloon, property of the Polish society for air defense, and release of the two balloonists.

FORD WORKERS OFFER TO BUY A CAR APIECE

Detroit, Mich., April 24.—[Special.]—The Ford Brotherhood of America, a union organization which claims a membership of 21,400 workers employed by the Ford Motor company, made public today a proposal for a collective bargaining contract under which each member of the union would agree to buy a Ford car at regular retail price within six months.

The proposal outlines a plan for the payment of one-third of the purchase price before delivery with other payments deducted from the workers' pay in amounts not to exceed one-third of wages.

The union is making the offer to buy cars contingent on a contract granting an annual minimum wage of $1,500 to workers now employed by the hour.

RUSSIA ARRESTS ARCHBISHOP AS REVOLT PLOTTER

9 Churchmen Seized on Orthodox Easter.

MOSCOW, April 24.—(AP)—The newspaper Robotchaya Moskva [the Workers' Moscow] today reported that the archbishop of Moscow and at least eight other churchmen had been arrested on charges of plotting overthrow of the soviet régime of Dictator Josef Stalin in league with "Fascist spies."

The newspaper did not publish the archbishop's name, but merely referred to him as "A."

The disclosure came as many Russians took part in orthodox Easter ceremonies.

It indicated intensification of a drive which in January brought reports of the arrest of eight high Russian orthodox churchmen and many nuns and priests.

Ex-Nobleman Seized.

The newspaper said a bishop identified as "D," Archdeacon D. F. Bavanov, and a former nobleman identified as "K" were among those arrested along with the archbishop on charges of membership in the "counter-revolutionary church Fascist spying organization" which, it added, had formed groups in churches of Moscow province.

The archbishop, bishop and nobleman were described as leaders of the organization. As such they were "connected with Fascist spies," the newspaper declared.

They were charged with preparing agents among clergymen for "insurrection in the rear when war is declared on the soviet union by capitalist countries," the newspaper reported.

"Through priests and monks they carried out counter-revolutionary, Fascist agitation and spread provocative rumors," it added.

Charge Terrorist Plot.

The bishop and a priest named Nikotin were accused of organizing a terrorist group in the church of St. Serge in Moscow, while a similar band was formed in a church at Fili, near Moscow, by the bishop and a priest named Glagolev, Robotchaya Moskva said.

At Zagorsk, another city near the soviet capital, the archdeacon and a monk were accused of building a Fascist organization from the remnants of the czarist régime.

The bishop was reported to have confessed that organizations to which he belonged included several groups instructed to organize sabotage, spying and mass insurrection in event of war.

Protestant clergymen also were arrested as leaders of allied organizations, the newspaper continued. A pastor, S. M. Fateyev, was accused of urging his followers to refuse to serve in the Red army. The name of his church was not given.

"Secret Churches" Organized.

Archbishop "A" was said to have "instructed his followers to develop counter-revolutionary, Fascist activity, urging underground conspiracy and giving instructions for organization of 'secret home churches' and illegal monasteries."

"Members of the organization under the instruction of foreign secret services collected and delivered abroad secret information about the soviet union," Robotchaya Moskva said.

"Members of a pacifist counter-revolutionary sect established close contact with spy organizations abroad.

"The leader of this sect, S. M. Fateyev, P. E. Rassypin and others carried out special espionage activity in Russia on behalf of foreign secret services. Under the instruction of their Fascist masters they especially visited a number of new constructions in the soviet union for this purpose."

GERMANS DEFY MUSSOLINI RULE IN SOUTH TYROL

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

VIENNA, April 24.—Reports from Innsbruck today indicated that the inhabitants of South Tyrol had ceased their passive acceptance of Italian authority there. Swastikas have been hoisted and the Hitler salute is used despite a ban by the authorities.

[There is a compact minority of 250,000 Germans in South Tyrol and they have steadily resisted all attempts to Italianize them. Their presence on the southern side of the strategic Brenner pass has worried Rome. Notwithstanding Adolf Hitler's pledge to Premier Mussolini that the Brenner pass would remain the frontier beyond which he would not try to go, the inhabitants were hopeful that, in the end, Germany would take them within the racial fold.]

Sample Jewelry Worth $300 Found in Drainage Canal

A sample case containing $300 worth of jewelry was found Saturday in the drainage canal and turned over yesterday to Lieut. Thomas Kelly of the state's attorney's office. The case was found by Rudy Prachter, 14 years old, 4615 Clinton avenue, Forest View. Police said the jewelry was stolen Friday at Huron and St. Clair streets from Frank A. Moran, 31 North State street, a salesman for the J. F. Sturdy Sons company, Attleboro Falls, Mass.

REDS VISION U. S. AS AN ALLY IN WAR ON FASCISM

Roosevelt Favors Such a Policy, Browder Says.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, April 24.—Earl Browder, leader of communistic activities in the United States, has reported to Moscow that President Roosevelt and his supporters have become adherents of the policy of collective security and opposed to the policy of isolation of the United States.

Earl Browder.

Browder said the President and his cohorts favor allying America with "peace loving nations in their fight against Fascist aggressors." Furthermore, he reported that conditions in America are rapidly improving for bolshevist propaganda and the possibility of forming a Popular Front party.

Foreign Policy Changed.

Browder's article was published in the Moscow Pravda, official organ of the communist party. The sudden appearance of a number of articles in the soviet press from communist international leaders abroad is viewed in Moscow circles as confirmation of the change in soviet foreign policy which has again united activities of the commissariat of foreign affairs with those of the communist international abroad.

Browder said the Roosevelt administration has created a situation in the United States which the communists intend to utilize to strengthen their program of class warfare.

Under the headline, "Popular Front Movement Growing in America," Browder analyzed the political situation. He said that the elections this year afford an unusual opportunity to strengthen the position of the communists and other forces in America seeking to involve the United States in European politics by allying her with France—already an ally of Russia—England, loyalist Spain, and others who "wish to protect peace against the onslaughts of the Fascists."

Browder reported that American public opinion now is supporting this policy.

He asserted the most interesting development in American politics is that the main fight does not concern internal policies but rather the nation's foreign policy. Roosevelt and his group were reported as supporting the policies which the communist party in America and the communist international favor — allying the United States with the soviet government against Germany, Italy, and Japan.

WOMAN HELD IN THEFT FROM SIMONE SIMON PROMISES FIREWORKS

Los Angeles, Cal., April 24.—[Special.]—Sandra Martin, 32 years old, former secretary of Simone Simon, today denied that she had admitted stealing $16,000 from the motion picture actress. "There will be plenty of fireworks before this is over," she said in her jail cell. Marjorie Fairchild, district attorney's investigator, said the alleged thefts from Miss Simon's bank account occurred about a year ago, when the actress was on a vacation in Europe.

CHINESE RETREAT AS JAPS SMASH NEAR RAILROAD

20,000 Troops Fall Back, Then Brace at Pihsien.

SHANGHAI, April 24. — (AP) — A "wholesale" Chinese retreat in Kiangsu province was reported tonight by Japanese military authorities. They said the withdrawal enabled their fighters to push nearer the vital east-west Lunghai railway, which for a long time has been a Japanese objective.

The Chinese retreat was said to have halted north of Pihsien, which is about eight miles north of the railroad, where the Japanese said they expected a determined Chinese stand against their advance. Twenty thousand Chinese were reported to have fallen back in disorganized numbers before they rallied and dug in north of Pihsien.

Occupy Town of Tancheng.

Coinciding with the Kiangsu province operations, the Japanese said a left flank column driving south from Lini in adjoining Shantung province occupied Tancheng, an important town just north of the Kiangsu border. Tancheng was added to a widening salient in southern Shantung, a few miles east of Taierchwang.

It was at Taierchwang that the Japanese on April 6 suffered a smashing defeat after occupying the city and crossing into Kiangsu for the first time from the north.

Their reorganized offensive to wipe out the stigma of that setback appeared to have gained momentum both in Shantung and Kiangsu provinces.

Opposing the southward drive from Lini was the 26th Chinese army, which accounted for the defeat of the Japanese at Taierchwang.

200,000 Chinese Along Front.

Chinese, believed to number about 200,000, were said by Chinese army spokesmen to be holding firm along a thirty mile front curving southwest of Lini.

[Reports from Hongkong said more than 100 Chinese died when Japanese bombing planes sunk two passenger boats which were en route to Macao from Kowloon. Forty-five survivors told of the disaster upon reaching Macao.]

Japanese naval units here held Sunday memorial services for 1,000 officers and bluejackets who were killed in China operations in recent weeks. A number of the dead were decorated posthumously.

JAPS MAY INDICT U. S. AVIATOR FOR FLYING FOR CHINA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, April 25. — [Monday.] — Claiming to have obtained definite proof that Melvin Gibbon, 27 year old American, served in the Chinese air service and fought against Japan, Yokohama police today were reported to have decided to indict the aviator. He was taken off the S. S. Empress of Asia Saturday and jailed.

The basis for the proposed indictment is an article of the Japanese criminal code providing that "anyone causing a foreign nation to open hostilities with Japan or resists Japan in hostilities" shall be subject to prosecution.

Gibbon, authorities said, admitted that he had participated in an attack on Japanese positions at Pengpu, in northern Anhwei province on Feb. 7. Two United States vice consuls were permitted to see the aviator in jail yesterday.

Boy Purse Snatcher, 13, Halts Church Services

Services in St. Nicholas Catholic church, 62d street and Lawndale avenue, were interrupted briefly yesterday while ushers seized Edward Herman, 13 years old, who had attempted to steal a woman's purse. The boy was taken to the juvenile home. He is a ward of the Catholic home bureau, which had placed him with a family at 5805 South Tripp avenue.

ESTONIA RETURNS TO GOVERNMENT BY CONSTITUTION

Paets Named President for Six Years.

TALLINN, Estonia, April 24.—(AP)—Konstantin Paets became Estonia's first president today under the new constitution evolved by himself.

Konstantin Paets. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

He was elected for a six year term by the two houses in the corporative system, which replaced the diet, and by an assembly of local government representatives.

Paets, who is 64 years old and who was "guardian of the state" during the last four years in which the diet was prorogued, was the only nominee. He was chosen by 219 to 19 votes. This eliminated the need for a popular election.

The new president had fought from his youth for the liberation of Estonia from Russia. In 1917, after the outbreak of the Russian revolution, the country regained its independence, which was proclaimed on Feb. 24, 1918. Paets became head of the republic and conducted a successful war against the bolshevists.

Clothed with Wide Powers.

In his new office he will have wide powers. He will appoint and dismiss the government and its individual members. He also will have the right to dissolve both houses of parliament and suspend the chamber for two weeks in any session. In the interim he would govern by decree.

The new constitution guarantees individual liberties and freedom of conscience and religion. Minorities will have full cultural autonomy.

Under it the 50 member diet, provided by the constitution which came into force on Jan. 24, 1934, was replaced by a national assembly of two chambers.

80 Members in Chamber.

The chamber of deputies has 80 members elected by popular vote. In elections in February 60 of the 80 seats went to the government. The upper house, or national council, consists of 30 members named by professional organizations and other groups and 10 named by the president.

For the last four years the country has been under authoritarian rule with Paets as president-regent.

U. S. AIR FORCE IS ORDERED OUT FOR WAR GAME

Realistic Maneuvers Will Begin on May 1.

BY WALTER TROHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—The most realistic war exercises ever attempted by United States army flyers will be undertaken next month by the general headquarters air force in tactical and staf problems.

The tactical problem was started tonight when Maj. Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commanding officer of the GHQ air force, received a crisp military summary of the situation from Secretary of War Woodring.

Message Describes Forces.

"War exists between a coalition of Asiatic and European powers, Black, and the United States, Blue," the message said. Canada and Mexico are neutral. The Blue main fleet, based on Hawaii, is engaged in defensive operations in the Pacific. Blue naval forces in the Atlantic are sufficient for coast patrol.

"The GHQ air force is ordered to concentrate in the New England area.

"The fleet of a European power, a member of the coalition, is escorting troop transports. Information indicates this force intends to attack in the New England area."

Upon receipt of the mobilization directions Gen. Andrews ordered his three wing commanders to assemble. The first wing was instructed to proceed by air from west coast stations and to civil airdromes from Schenectady, N. Y., to New Haven, Conn.

Movements Start May 1.

The second wing was ordered from its stations on the east coast and in the northern section of the United States to airdromes in the vicinity of New York City, Long Island, and New Jersey. The third wing was moved from garrisons in the central United States to civil airdromes in Pennsylvania. All movements were ordered to start May 1. Tactical exercises and problems will continue until May 20.

Wartime conditions will be simulated throughout the maneuvers. All air forces of the United States army except observation squadrons, are under the GHQ command. These include all pursuit, bombing, and attack planes. In wartime observation squadrons are under the command of the various army corps, three squadrons to each corps.

BY MARCIA WINN.

This is the story of an elderly lady and two hours yesterday at the Art institute of Chicago. Her visit there was not in itself unusual, for she is a lover of the arts and is thoroughly familiar with all the institute's permanent collections. But her actions were unusual, in that she stood beside one picture for a solid hour.

That picture was "Red Trilliums," one of the series of twenty-two color reproductions from THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE color studio which went on exhibit in Blackstone hall of the institute yesterday. The other 21 pictures, admitted the elderly lady, an exquisite little figure in black crêpe and a knotted cane, were excellent, but "Red Trilliums"—she sighed.

Like Patch of the Forest.

"This," she exclaimed, leaving the pillar against which she had been leaning, her eyes in deep reverie as she gazed, "is a patch of the forest."

"Look," and with gentle finger she indicated first one fine point, then another.

"Those blossoms seem alive.

"No painter could have caught them like that. I have seen them many times as a child in Iowa. The fallen oak leaves and the deep green leaf of the trillium. See how it even looks damp as it is in the swamp where they grow.

"And, see, they have even shown the stray little spring beauties that crop up between the leaves. That's the way it is. And, there," pointing to a light green clover-like leaf, "that's the anemone.

Beauty of Spring Flowers.

"Now this next picture is beautiful," indicating 'Spring Beauties,' "but I don't remember the flowers blooming in such masses as that. They usually just sprang up in little stray patches. But this," turning to "White Oak Blossoms," "is perfect. They are so white and delicately green, so springlike. Even the trunks of the forest in the background seem subdued in that blue haze of early spring.

The exhibition, held by the institute in line with its policy of encouraging superior work in the graphic arts, was viewed yesterday by young and old, including many interested in photography. It will continue through May 14.

"The exhibition has been crowded all day long," Willis Porter, captain of the institute's guards, commented. "The people seemed to take to it very well. What interested them most? Oh, the spring pictures, I would say."

U. S.-SPANISH WAR 40 YEARS AGO; HERO STRICKEN

San Francisco, Cal., April 24.—[Special.]—Hundreds of floral gifts and messages of congratulations on his eighty-first birthday reached Col. Andrew Rowan, ill in a hospital here today, proof that the nation has not forgotten him or the declaration of war by the United States against Spain 40 years ago tomorrow.

Col. Rowan has been under medical care for two weeks since he fell in his home here and fractured a rib, won fame at the beginning of the war as a young lieutenant when he carried a message from President McKinley to Gen. Garcia, leader of the Cuban insurgents, telling him that the United States intended to free Cuba from Spanish domination.

ENEMY PUSHED BACK IN BATTLE OF SALT CREEK

The Battle of Salt Creek, which last February appeared to be ending in the rout of the Illinois National Guard, yesterday turned against the enemy which is trying to invade Chicago between Hinsdale and Elmhurst. In case you haven't heard, this started as a map battle between 10,000 imaginary troops under National Guard officers and 20,000 under regular army command. The problem for the 10,000 was to withstand the invaders until reinforcements arrived. An examination of the terrain by 300 officers yesterday showed the Guard's defensive positions were theoretically strong.

Janitors Show Art

Ernest Koeppel, foreman of art students who earn expenses by doing janitor work at Art institute, views a portrait by Wendell Stevenson, another student janitor.

Paintings by the student janitor group of the Art institute were exhibited yesterday in the institute lobby. The show will continue until May 7. There are twenty-seven exhibitors, all of whom earn part of their expenses by mopping and dusting classrooms.

Under a new requirement all the work of the students had to be done outside the classroom. Critics said that this rule had resulted in more original efforts. Some of the paintings are of extreme modernistic design.

9 Illinois Parole Violators Arrive in City from West

Nine Illinois parole violators seized in the west arrived at the Dearborn station last night and were taken from the train to the detective bureau whence they will be returned to Joliet penitentiary.

ASKS ORGANIZED FIGHT TO REFORM PAROLE SYSTEM

Clabaugh Calls Illinois Setup a Failure.

Hinton G. Clabaugh, former head of the state parole board, recommended yesterday that opponents of the Illinois parole system organize to bring about parole reform at the next session of the legislature. He said advocates and apologists for the present system are organized in every county, and that a concerted effort will be needed to bring about any substantial change in the law. Clabaugh believes Illinois' parole system has failed.

He supported the plan of Frank J. Loesch, president emeritus of the Chicago crime commission, for indeterminate sentences to be fixed by trial judges, a plan approved by the legislature in the Ward-Schnackenberg law, but which was vetoed by Gov. Horner.

Final Discharge Too Easy.

"One bad feature of the parole laws is the granting of final discharges from parole," Mr. Clabaugh said. "In the three years and ten months I was chairman of the parole board final discharges were scarce. Now it is the custom to grant them almost automatically.

"In recent weeks there have been several instances where ex-convicts obtained writs of habeas corpus when arrested for investigation of certain crimes. Convicts who had obtained their final discharge from parole were ordered released from custody by the courts. A convict under parole would not be similarly released because the police would have the right to lock him up until his guilt or innocence was established."

Quotes Board's Rule.

Robert Phillips, secretary of the parole board, said the board has adopted a rule that no final discharge from parole be granted in less than three years in the case of a first term convict, four years for a second term parolee, and five years for others. The law is that a final discharge may be obtained after six months on parole.

Guided Ten Years

Morris Frank, who is 31 years old and blind, and Buddy, his German shepherd dog who is 11 and Frank's visual guide, celebrated in Chicago yesterday the tenth anniversary of their meeting. Their encounter in 1928 was momentous, for from it evolved the present Seeing Eye in America. Frank, blind for the last seventeen years, met Buddy at a Seeing Eye institution in Vevey, Switzerland, where German shepherd females are trained to serve as eyes for the blind. The next year he was instrumental in founding the Seeing Eye, Inc., at Morristown, N. J., with Mrs. Harrison Eustis. From this grew the present institution, through which new usefulness has been given to hundreds of blind Americans.

3 WHITE YOUTHS DIE IN CHAIR FOR SLAYING NEGRO

Bellefonte, Pa., April 25 [Monday].—(AP)—Three young men died in Pennsylvania's electric chair early today for the 41 cent holdup slaying of Floyd Tranon, 38 year old Negro, on July 25, 1936, in a "lovers' lane" near Chester, Pa.

Members of a gang which a judge termed the "worst that ever came out of Chester," the trio was Edward Rose and John Oreszak, both 21, and Theodore Duminiak, 20, all of Chester.

Tranon was shot down as he attempted to run away after handing over the 41 cents he had in his pocket.

EXPECT COUNCIL TO PASS AIRPORT MEASURE TODAY

The city council is expected to pass today a revised ordinance providing legal machinery for shifting the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad tracks from the Chicago airport area and thereby make it possible to enlarge the airport to virtually a square mile, or more than twice its present size. This would give Chicago one of the finest airfields in the United States.

As drawn up the ordinance is acceptable to the city, railroad, and other interested parties, and if passed by the council will require only final approval from the Bankers' Trust company of New York, trustee of the railroad's mortgage bonds. Agents of the bank have already studied the ordinance provisions, and railroad officials expect no objections. Mayor Kelly said last night that passage of the measure will remove the last obstacle to airport expansion.

Condemnation proceedings or negotiations will be taken up with 144 landowners whose acreage is needed. The 145th owner is Raymond E. Herman, who owns 2.78 acres. Because of a disagreement, the price of this land is to be fixed by Federal Judge Evan A. Evans.

DETROIT MAN IS ROBBED HERE OF $9,400, HE SAYS

Alfred Nadler, 36 years old, of Detroit, Mich., a real estate dealer, reported to Warren avenue police early today that two men robbed him of $9,400 at Western avenue and Jackson boulevard. The loot, he said, included nine $1,000 bills. He said that the men, one of whom displayed a badge and posed as a policeman, kidnaped him in their car as he was about to enter the Alcazar hotel, 3000 Washington boulevard, where he has been staying the last four days. He was pushed from the car at Western avenue and Jackson boulevard.

Nadler said he was returning to the hotel from a restaurant in Roosevelt road, near Kedzie avenue. This is near a suspected gambling house, police said. A report that even after the robbery Nadler had $12,000 in his hotel room sent a squad there. All they found was $750 in Mexican gold pieces. Nadler recently visited in Mexico. Three years ago he won nearly $20,000 in a sweepstakes.

MARSHAL PETAIN, AT 82, IS READY AGAIN TO FIGHT FOR FRANCE

Henri Petain.

PARIS, April 24.—(AP)—Marshal Henri Petain celebrated his 82d birthday today, confident he still has a part to play in French national defense more than twenty years after the war which made him a national hero.

The name of the dignified "defender of Verdun" has been increasingly mentioned in recent months as one of the elder statesmen who might steer France through the maze of political maneuvering.

His close association with Premier Edouard Daladier brought the suggestion of a post in the government for the marshal, but he has discouraged such attempts. "He prefers to remain in the background," one of his close associates said, but "will be ready if the time comes."

Inhalator Squads Win One, but Lose Second Battle

Fire inhalator squads won one fight with death last night, but lost another at the same time. Squad 6 managed to revive Ricard Beckert, 10 months old, 3711 North Troy street, after he had been stricken with convulsions, supposedly due to measles. The infant's condition is serious. Squad 4 worked vainly for nearly two hours to revive Knute Thompson, 70 years old, 2549 Sunnyside avenue, after he was found submerged in a bathtubful of water. He apparently fell and struck his head while climbing into the tub.

A number of State street stores have agreed to devote a large part of their window displays to Chicago products that week to emphasize the importance of the 9 billion dollars' worth of commodities produced annually in Chicago.

CONGRESS PUTS OFF SHOWDOWN ON ROOSEVELT

Democrats Plan to Await Reaction of Voters.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., April 24.—[Special.]—Although the Roosevelt administration has been signally defeated in endeavoring to maintain and extend its program of social, economic, and political innovations, the leaders of the regular Democrats and of the insurgent Democrats are now disposed, it is learned, to postpone the question of further liquidation of the New Deal to the next congress to be elected in November.

Thus both the conservative Democrats who, with the aid of the Republicans, have administered in this congress the first setback to the New Deal will go to the people with the issue that has divided their party.

Postmaster General James A. Farley, in his capacity as chairman of the Democratic national committee, said in a speech yesterday that the decision is up to the voters. Others of the insurgent Democrats have acquiesced because their own faction no more than the other is disposed to stay in Washington to battle over the revision of other policies they hold responsible for the depression.

Hope to Adjourn June 1.

Most congressmen and senators who are candidates this year want to adjourn by June 1 and start their campaigning for reëlection.

By the numbers of New Deal and anti-New Deal senators and representatives they return to Washington next November the people will indicate preliminarily, and by the President and congress they elect in 1940, they will determine finally whether they want the achievements and policies of the Roosevelt administration retained and extended or subjected to a thorough overhauling for the correction of economic blunders.

If the Republicans and conservative Democrats should win control of the house next November the new congress meeting next January would be the scene of a determined drive to liquidate the more extreme phases of the experimentation of the last five years. Inasmuch, however, as the President might be expected to veto measures antagonistic to his policies and philosophy the next congress is more than likely to produce nothing more than a deadlock pending the final appeal to the electorate in 1940.

Reverses for Roosevelt.

The conservative Democrats and the Republicans already have defeated the administration in the effort to pack the Supreme court and to clothe the President with dictatorial powers to reorganize the administrative branch of the government. They have checked substantially the endeavor of the administration to retain the prohibitive taxes on undistributed corporation profits and on capital gains. All the President was able to salvage from this engagement was a face saving retention of the principle of the undistributed profits tax on large corporations for two years.

Likewise the administration has been checked in the attempt to extend the TVA plan of government competition with privately owned public utilities to the entire country. The bill the President sponsored to create 7 more TVAs has been shorn by the Democratic leaders of the water power development features and moreover has been shelved for the remainder of this congress.

Defeated on Wage Rule.

Finally the administration has been defeated up to date in its effort to pass legislation for the political regulation of wages and hours of labor. This bill was passed by the senate last summer before the development of the new depression was realized. But after the administration had been compelled to recognize the severity of the business slump the bill was beaten in the house at the last session by the conservatives, who stressed its likeness to a fundamental provision of the depression-breeding NRA and particularly by the southern Democrats, who realized that minimum wages and maximum hours of labor would destroy the industrial advantage of the south.

Under pressure from the President the house leaders have revived the wage-hour bill, but with no great hopes of getting it passed at this session. Conveniently overlooking the defection of half the Democratic members of the rules committee, Speaker Bankhead says that if the committee refuses a special rule for consideration of the bill it will be the fault of the Republican members.

There are four Republican members and only one of them, Joseph W. Martin of Massachusetts, has evinced an intention to forward the bill. He confessedly reflects the New England industrial attitude that the imposition of minimum wages and hours on the south will stop the ruinous competition to which that section has subjected the textile industry of his section.

Thus the administration Democrats find themselves impaled on the horns of a dilemma. If they succeed in passing the wage-hour bill they will alienate the southern Democrats, thereby widening still farther the breach in their party, while if they fail to get the bill through congress they will incur the hostility of union labor.

GUFFEY TAKES STUMP; SCORES EARLE ON LOANS

Predicts Disclosure Will Wreck Governor.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Johnstown, Pa., April 24.—[Special.]—Taking the stump for the first time in Pennsylvania's turbulent Democratic primary, Senator Joseph F. Guffey today ripped into his one-time political crony, Gov. George H. Earle, for his financial shenanigans with the state's most favored contractor on public works.

The senator, who is pitting his vast federal patronage machine against the state organization for control of the party at the polls May 17, predicted that Gov. Earle would be cast into the political discard as a result of the disclosures.

Loans Basis of Attack.

The attack was based on charges, finally admitted by Earle, that he took $26,500 in loans from Matthew H. McCloskey, a Philadelphia contractor and Democratic leader, who received nearly $10,000,000 worth of contracts from the state spending authority, headed by the governor.

Mayor S. Davis Wilson of Philadelphia came forward on the same platform to announce that he was going to lay a formal demand before Interior Secretary Harold L. Ickes to hold up all McCloskey contracts pending an investigation. Wilson called Earle "McCloskey's Charlie McCarthy."

Wilson and Earle are fighting for the Democratic senatorial nomination. The slate headed by Wilson and Thomas Kennedy, who is secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers and a candidate for the governorship, was dictated by Guffey and John L. Lewis, C. I. O. czar. Earle's candidate for governor is Charles A. Jones, Pittsburgh lawyer.

Takes Rap at Horse Gamblers.

"The issue in this campaign is whether Pennsylvania shall be turned over to contractor bosses and race horse gamblers," shouted Guffey in his speech. The race horse gambler reference was taken as a rap at John B. Kelly, who, with McCloskey, leads the Philadelphia Democratic organization and who tried to push legalization of horse gambling through the last legislature.

Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti has announced himself as an unbossed candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. In Philadelphia today he threatened to start an investigation of state employés, charging their coercion by both Guffey and Earle.

Wisconsin Testing Ground for National Third Party

BY THORNTON SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., April 24.—[Special.]—The apparent decision of the La Follettes to launch a new national third party is taken to mean that Wisconsin will continue to be a laboratory for political and economic experiments.

If the new party comes out of the meeting in the University gymnasium in Madison next Thursday is to make any progress before the election of 1940 it will be necessary to point to a Wisconsin program of accomplishment during the next two years and to show that whatever formula the Progressives propose to offer has justified itself by a successful test in this state.

The prospect that Wisconsin will be a testing ground makes the election of the state officers and particularly members of the state legislature of importance this year. Whether La Follette proposes to run again for governor or to retire and direct things from the outside, leaders of the new movement consider it is vital for them to win control of the executive and the law making bodies.

La Follettes Long in Control.

Those who oppose the radical ideas of the La Follette family which has controled the state government almost continually since the first La Follette was elected governor in 1900, consider it even more important that they elect a majority of both legislative houses.

An informal coalition of Republicans and Democrats in the senate acted as a brake on the radicals during the last session. Coalition control of the senate was lost by the defection of one Republican and one Democrat so that the governor had his way on vital issues but was slowed up in enacting the complete radical program which the Milwaukee Socialists offered as their contribution to his farmer labor progressive federation.

In addition to the five constitutional state offices to be filled this year, a complete new lower house of 100 members must be elected and 16 of the 33 members of the senate. The part these officials can play promoting the program of the new party or in checking it has become of importance to the nation as well as to those living in the state.

Goal of Long Standing.

The hope of heading a new national party long has been a La Follette ambition. The first Robert M. La Follette essayed it in 1924 when he ran for President as an independent against Coolidge. Although he received the support of organized labor his defeat was overwhelming. He carried Wisconsin, however, receiving 453,678 votes, against 311,614 for Coolidge.

The action of the Socialists in their national convention in Kenosha last week is considered disappointing to the new third party movement. Mayor Hoan of Milwaukee and Assemblyman Jack Harvey of Racine, both members of the Progressive federation, with the aid of Norman Thomas, fought to open the way for an allegiance with the Progressives, but were balked by a majority of the delegates.

The La Follette formula for prosperity which the governor has promised to present to the Thursday meeting still is in mystery. The only certainties about it, in the opinion of those who know the Progressives well, is that it will be based on liberal spending of the taxpayers' money and that it will appeal to prejudice.

Sen. La Follette Condemns Roosevelt Supernavy Bill

Senator Robert La Follette [Prog., Wis.] yesterday declared himself against armament expansion contemplated in the Roosevelt administration's $1,156,000,000 super navy bill now pending in congress. Speaking in the Auditorium theater before a meeting of the Chicago committee to keep America out of war, he asserted that the United States is in no danger of war if it avoids the folly of joint action.

Miami Beach, Fla., April 24.—(AP)—Donald Lucas, 10 years old, chased his toy airplane right off the roof of a three story apartment building. A telephone wire broke his fall and he landed in a sandpile, unhurt.

Roosevelt Drafts Special Message Cruising Potomac

Washington, D. C., April 24.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, cruising the Potomac river on the yacht Potomac not far from the capital, today worked on his anti-monopoly message to congress, which may provide an issue for this year's congressional elections.

It was assumed generally in the capital that he already had completed another special message to be delivered to congress tomorrow on the subject of tax exemption. In this the President has indicated he would urge removal of tax exemptions from public salaries and the income of federal and state securities.

PROBLEMS MADE EASY

COUNTY LEADERS OF BOTH PARTIES TO MEET TODAY

G. O. P. Maps Fall Battle; Democrats Quiet.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Simultaneous county conventions will be held by Democrats and Republicans of Cook county in loop hotels this afternoon, the former in the Morrison and the latter in the La Salle.

These are the first central organization meetings required by statute since the primaries of April 12. It is indicated that the intraparty conditions that prevailed on that date will be vastly changed. The Democrats, who had a turbulent battle over nominations, are expected to transact necessary business and adjourn quietly. The Republicans, who had no primary battle, now are expected to start out warring against their November opponents.

Call to Arms by Moore.

The Republican plans provide for a call to arms on national issues by Chairman Edward F. Moore in the absence from the city of Richard J. Lyons, the nominee for United States senator. They also call for a speech by former Judge Theodore F. Ehler, nominee for county judge. Ehler who has indicated he will read the record of his opponent, County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, throughout all elections during his sixteen years in office and particularly the record of his part in the controversy this year between the Horner machine and the Nash machine.

In some respects the two conventions are expected to follow the same procedure. Each party, it is believed, will reflect its present chairman unanimously. The Republican ward and township committeemen are more united behind Moore than they have been behind any leader in years. The Democratic chairman, P. A. Nash, probably will be elected without opposition because the Horner-Courtney forces control only an insignificant minority of the organization.

Favor Convention Recess.

It is probable also that both conventions will approve proposals that the state party conventions, required by the primary law to be held in Springfield next Friday, be recessed until next fall. The Republican leaders already have agreed that there will be only a skeleton convention this spring, and that the real convention will be held late in August or in September.

On the Democratic side there has been no agreement about deferring the state meeting, but such action is expected because of a report from White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., that Gov. Horner and some of his associates favor postponement.

Chairman Nash, who went to Florida soon after primary day, returned to Chicago yesterday. He talked with other organization leaders last night and it was said he had no objection to recessing the state convention if the Horner group desires the delay

BOY, 5, IS KILLED WHEN HE DARTS IN PATH OF AUTO

Donald Chapman, 5 years old, was killed yesterday by an automobile in front of his home at 5414 Huron street. Witnesses said he ran from behind a parked car. John Armstrong, 546 Williams street, River Forest, the driver of the car, took the boy to the West Suburban hospital where he died.

Herman Rosenbach, 48 years old, 1314 Devon avenue, was killed last night when he was struck by an automobile at Granville avenue and Clark street. The driver, Peter Willis, 2954 North Ashland avenue, was held.

Because he chose to remain at his family's summer cottage at Chain-o'-Lakes, near Lakeside, Ind., Bradley Durling, 13 years old, was alive yesterday. His father, Paul L. Durling, 7749 Evans avenue, and two other children, Carol Lee, 5, and Paul Jr., 4, were killed Saturday when their automobile was struck by a South Shore line passenger train at Lydick, Ind., 6 miles west of South Bend.

Durling and the younger children were on their way to purchase supplies for a week-end holiday. He was sales manager for Henry G. Thompson & Co. of New Haven, Conn., manufacturers of band saws.

A woman who was killed by a hit-and-run motorist in Pulaski road at 69th street on April 15 was identified yesterday as Mrs. Mary Babareka, 40, of 1732 West 13th street. Her husband, Michael, made the identification.

Jerry Unger, 22 years old, of Prairie View, was rescued from his burning automobile yesterday by a father and daughter whose car had collided with Unger's at Skokie boulevard and Belvidere street, west of Waukegan. The rescuers were J. H. Cohodes and his daughter, Adele, 21, of Iron Mountain, Mich. The three were treated for burns at St. Theresa hospital in Waukegan.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 270 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 215 were killed in Chicago, where 5,241 were injured in the same period.

TRACTOR OVERTURNS; YOUTH KILLED.

Marlene Dietrich stepped off the Santa Fe Super Chief here yesterday and was immediately surrounded by a swarm of masculine movie fans. WARM WEATHER MAKES HIGHWAY HAZARDS GROW

Police Warn Motorists of Week-End Dangers.

BY HAL FOUST.

The Illinois state police yesterday reminded motorists that they are entering a season of heavy trafic and additional hazards on rural highways over week-ends.

"Through the spring and summer," said Supervising Captain Phil Renkowsiak, in command in the metropolitan area, "drivers must exercise more than ordinary caution on the arterial highways on Saturdays and Sundays when the weather is inviting. The roads will be crowded.

"In the crowds there will be drivers who are fatigued, others who are in a hurry, others who are not so attentive as they might be, and still others with limited experience in handling a car in congestion. It's a dangerous combination.

"If motorists will bear in mind that while on the main highways their job at the wheel demands all of their attention, there will be fewer accidents. If they want to loll at a leisurely pace, stopping for views of the green countryside, they should leave the main highways. There are many pleasant side roads for such excursions."

Aided by Lieut. Frank Jarzebowski, Capt. Renkowsiak took a detail of patrolmen and patrol cars on to the highway and demonstrated some of the hazardous situations that arise in week-end congestion. These situations were photographed and are reproduced on the back page of THE TRIBUNE this morning as a lesson in avoiding death on week-end tours.

MAN, THE SAVAGE

By CALEB

IN A CORNER window of the Store for Men stands the battered silver Stanley cup, emblematic of the hockey championship. Reputed to have cost $50 originally, the cup has no great intrinsic value—and yet is the possession most coveted by lusty knights of the stick and blade.

We pointed it out yesterday to a friend of ours who had just finished a pessimistic dissertation on human nature. "Look how little it takes to remove the veneer and bring out the savage in civilized man," he had said. "There are wars—selfishness, greed, and dishonesty." The picture he painted was a dark one.

"Let's look at both sides of the picture," I insisted. "Take these same humans that you say are so near to the animals, and mark, on the other hand, how close they stand to nobility, unselfishness, and heroic achievement.

"This Stanley cup will serve as one example—although there are better ones. It illustrates the principle that man's enthusiasm, strength, aggressiveness, and best effort are all enlisted by idealism. You will say that hockey players are motivated by salary and the desire to build a reputation that will increase it. I admit that is true—to a degree.

"But it is also true, and any coach or manager will bear me out in this, that top-notch performance in any sport is not bought with salary. It comes from the response of a player to the ideal of teamwork, the will to win; and the urge toward some goal and award that has little or no value at the bank.

"You will argue that some lawyers seek an income first—and justice afterward. This may be true in some cases. But for every one example you can produce, I shall be able to point to a hundred where justice is maintained at all costs, and in the face of great temptation.

"Business, you will say, is selfish. But for every example you can produce, I shall be able to point out a dozen major, positive services it has given to social and economic welfare—achieved frequently in the face of almost insurmountable obstacles.

"No, you cannot convince me that man is making no progress. I say that he is—that he is better today than he was yesterday, and that he will be better tomorrow than he is today."

We walked on down the street, lost in thought.

TWO BACK SEAT DRIVERS GO OUT FOR RIDE ALONE

Take Police Squad Car on a Tipsy Tour.

"What's the trouble here?" asked Sergt. Elwood Martin and Policeman Ray Sapp of the Franklin Park force as they pushed open the door of the Pow Wow inn at Belmont avenue and River road.

Ray Corr [at top] and Edward Mulkerin.

Nobody said anything. Some of the roadhouse patrons were hopefully essaying the Big Apple, others were munching barbecued sandwiches, and there was a pleasant tinkle of ice in tall glasses.

The policemen recalled that a year ago last November a robber had been killed and five others wounded at the Pow Wow. Perhaps there was, as a telephone report had indicated, some trouble. They pressed inside. Congenial customers suggested they have a beer. They explained they were on duty, and headed for the exit, puzzled.

The Trouble Arrives.

"We've got trouble, all right," said Policeman Sapp, the first to step outside. He pointed to the place where they had parked their squad car. It was gone.

"A coupla drunks drove off in it," volunteered a bystander.

Martin and Sapp sounded the alarm and took up the chase themselves, in a borrowed squad car, as Chicago and county highway police joined in. Soon excited householders on the northwest side were calling the Jefferson Park station.

"Some drunken policemen," they said, "are zigzagging all over the streets firing shotguns and letting out warwhoops. Help!"

Crash Street Barricades.

Trail's end was at Pittsburgh avenue and Grace street, where the thieves had crashed the car through a half a dozen street barricades. Out staggered Edward Mulkerin, 21 years old, of 3615 Pontiac avenue, and Ray Corr, 18, of 4327 Mozart street.

Sergt. Martin surveyed the wrecked squad car, its windows broken and windshield kicked out, fenders wrinkled, ammunition shot away, books of arrest slips torn to tatters.

"Who was driving that car?" he thundered.

"I wasn't," said Mulkerin.

"I wasn't either," said Corr. "We were both in the back seat all the time."

IOWAN ADMITS THEFTS TO PLAY GRAIN MARKET

Clemins J. Ahmann, former secretary of the Columbia Life Insurance company, Sioux City, Ia., admitted to Chicago police yesterday he had played the grain market heavily for the last two years with embezzled funds and had lost consistently.

Arrested Saturday night in a South State street hotel, Ahmann, who is 50 years old and the father of six children, told Detectives Sam Block and Joseph Keating that he appropriated $27,500 of the insurance company's HOLC bonds to obtain money for his fruitless investments. When the loss was discovered he fled to Chicago on Jan. 18. He will be turned over to Sioux City authorities tomorrow.

SELL BROKERAGE FIXTURES TODAY ON COURT ORDER

Equipment and furnishings of Hoagland & Allum Company, Inc., defunct brokerage house, will be sold at public auction today in the offices at 14 South La Salle street on order of the federal District court, where the Hoagland company is in receivership.

The three officials of the company, George F. Allum, president; Henry A. Engel, secretary-treasurer, and Olaf A. Larsen, vice president, are in the county jail in bonds of $225,000. The collapse of the firm cost investors an estimated $725,000. Indictments against the officials charging embezzlement and conspiracy are expected to be returned today before Chief Justice Cornelius J. Harrington of the Criminal court.

Accountants for the federal Securities and Exchange commission continued their examination of the company's books yesterday. Because the firm was not a member of any stock exchange, its books were not subject to regular supervision and its bad financial condition was not learned until the collapse.

PROSPERITY DEPENDS UPON CONGRESS.

Business recovery was by 1936 well advanced throughout the world. Although the improvement here had been less than in many other nations, comparisons with 1932 and 1933 were impressive. Stocks on June 22, 1936, sold at the highest level since the international crisis following the failure of the Austrian Credit-Anstalt in 1931. Industrial output was the greatest in June, 1936, for any June since 1929. Railroad freight for the month set a six year record.

It was in June, 1936, that the surplus earnings tax became a law. A claim was made for the bill that it would make business still better by forcing corporations to pay all of their earnings out to their stockholders. True, the penalty on holding back earnings for expansion was sufficient to force the payment of huge dividends late in 1936 and early in 1937. And it is also true that a temporary boom in stocks and trade was thereby created.

But the intervening of government in the management of corporations laid the foundation for the present depression. New investment could not confidently be made in enterprises subject to such penalties. For prosperous conditions there must be a steady flow of new capital into business. Fifty leading stocks have at no time since sold for as great a price as they did in November, 1936. And the peak of industrial production reached in December, 1936, has not subsequently been equaled. The current rate is one-third lower.

Business has not since been as good as it was when the surplus earnings tax was enacted to make it better. It is now reduced to the state of a depression. Nations which spurned such legislation have not experienced as severe a decline as have we. And never have we had such a tax law and never a recession of equal speed and intensity.

The germ of this depression has been isolated. One expert after another, called by the senate committee on unemployment, declared that the surplus earnings tax was the important cause of the low state of business. The majority of the senate committee, composed of four Democrats and one radical Republican, none of whom voted against the tax when it was before congress, were so completely convinced of the diagnosis by the experts that they recommended the repeal of the surplus earnings tax as a means of reducing the amount of unemployment and bringing about business revival.

If a measure is found to have such harmful effects its expeditious and complete repeal ought not to be questioned. And yet four congressmen on a conference committee with representatives of the senate have succeeded in getting the committee's approval of a modified form of the tax. They seem not to understand that it was not alone the rate of the surplus earnings tax but the very doctrin of that tax which has paralyzed capital investment.

It is still possible for the members of congress to correct the mistakes of their conference committee. Congress can yet demonstrate that it means to make it possible for enterprise to earn a profit and to keep whatever amount seems desirable in the business for development. The opportunity to vote better times is open to congress.

Please, members of congress, let prosperity return.

DEFENSE OF SOUTH AMERICA.

In the opening debate in the senate on the administration's naval expansion bill the possibility of war for the enforcement of the Monroe Doctrin was a conspicuous feature. Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, chairman of the naval affairs committee, while recognizing the delicacy of the subject from the standpoint of diplomatic relations, went so far as to say: "I think it quite possible for some European country or some country in the orient to seek, within a reasonably short time, which may be a few years, naval bases and possessions in South America." On the other side of the aile Senator White of Maine, Republican, declared that he did not consider it impossible that at some time in the future we shall have to abandon the Monroe Doctrin or go to war to insure the territorial integrity of the nations of South America.

It may be assumed, we think, that this view which has been so frankly expressed on the floor of the senate finds support in the navy. High officers had been consulted by the naval committee in its recent hearings, and though their opinions were not made public, their drift is known.

If then the possibility of war for the protection of South America from European or Japanese aggression is to be regarded as justification for unprecedented expansion of our naval force, the administration and the senate cannot rest upon the mere building of ships. The spending of huge sums of public money has obvious attractions, but the public that provides the money will want to be assured that it will attain its purpose. If we are presently to go to war in defense of South America that defense will have to be given in South American waters. Ships can go to sea, but they must have available bases. The navy may proceed to South American waters, but it is obvious that in the Atlantic such a compaign would be fought or might be fought at serious risk if the fleet's rear were exposed. This means that the possession of the islands which lie between the United States and the field of operations cannot be permitted to remain in any hands but our own. No matter how large a fleet we build this prime strategic factor must be provided for.

The West Indian islands belong to this continent for many reasons, but if we are preparing for the defense of South America and leaving them out of consideration we are inviting disaster.

If the administration wishes to avoid the inference that its naval expansion program is not merely another huge expenditure for political ends, it will lose no time in pushing measures to procure the transfer of the Windward and Leeward Islands to the United States. There is a British commission on the way to contract for American airplanes. It is a serious mission in present circumstances and should be impressed with the seriousness of the island question from the American standpoint.

ILLINOIS POLITICS AFTER THE PRIMARIES.

Illinois Democratic politicos are taking the rest cure at various retreats. Gov. Horner and his partisans are recuperating in the springtide at a West Virginia garden spot and nearly all the prominent men of the party feel the need of political hospitalization. The family fight was a bitter one. Its wounds are deep. The rivals have known each other for a long time in office and in political activity. Mr. Nash and his side and Gov. Horner and his side were equally determined to win and to do so each endeavored to convince the voters that the other partisans were entirely untrustworthy and unfit for public office and the management of political affairs.

Gov. Horner was accused of the ambition to be a superboss and of debasing and cheapening the prestige of his office by adopting the practices of a ward heeler. Thomas P. Sinnett, campaign manager for Michael Igoe, said that the governor was coercing tavern keepers in the state through his liquor commission by threatening them with the loss of their licenses and that he was also assessing the farmers who sold supplies to the state institutions with the threat of taking their business away from them.

"Contractors and material men are being coerced to make contributions to the machine," said Mr. Sinnett for Mr. Igoe. "It is a matter of common knowledge that the contractor and material man who makes the largest contribution becomes the favorite in the awarding of public contracts."

Mr. Igoe said that his opponent for the United States senate, Scott W. Lucas, was only a common scold, with nothing in his platform but complete subservience to the political aims and ambitions of the governor of Illinois. Mr. Lucas said: "Whether you realize it or not, the Kelly-Nash machine affects most of the actions of your daily life and has its hidden hand in your pocketbook every minute of the day."

"The Kelly-Nash machine," said Judge Edmund K. Jarecki, "is attempting the greatest vote steal ever conceived in the history of Cook county. I have been county judge sixteen years and I have never seen such a frantic and organized effort to put over a gigantic vote fraud and vote thievery as is now being perpetrated by Kelly and Nash. Their minions go about coercing the public school teachers, who know how tragic has been the Kelly-Nash influence on free education."

"There are men with penitentiary records handling your records in the office of the election commissioners," said Judge Prystalski, candidate for Judge Jarecki's office. Judge Jarecki said Judge Prystalski was a penthouse parrot of the bosses.

The bitterness of the contest brought out more accusations and caused more wounds than a week or so in a health resort will heal. The post-primary reflections of the voters must incline them to doubt that any of the Democratic candidates who went through the campaign came out qualified to make an impressive showing of their eligibility in the election. The Democratic partisans who lost have said too many things detracting from the political probity of the candidates who won to make it easy for them to join in putting these men in the offices they seek.

For over two years the Illinois Democrats have been split into two accusing factions. The election returns did not bridge the gulf. A Republican campaign on national lines and above small politics has the way cleared for it.

Editorial of the Day

SWASTIKA.

[Portland Oregonian.]

From before the dawn of history until quite recent time the symbol known generally as the "swastika" [accent on the first syllable] had a benign significance. The name is derived from Sanskrit terms meaning "well being," and, prior to the adoption of the design as their particular emblem by the German National Socialists subsequent to the world war, the type of cross invariably was associated with the idea of good fortune. Regrettably, the world is seeing it now as representative of intolerance and ill will. Other users of the symbol are disturbed over the implications. Current news is that units of the American army are wondering if the old design should be stricken from their insignia.

Technically the swastika is a form of Greek cross, the four parts of equal length, and each with a foot turned out of a right angle, all in the same direction, clockwise. The design has been found in drawings on the walls of caves in France, Spain, and North America, believed to predate the glacial era. It has been discovered in remains from the bronze age in various parts of Europe, was known in very early times in Greece, Persia, India, China, and Japan. It occurs in the arts and decorations of the aborigines of North, Central, and South America, in civilizations without record of intercourse with European and Asiatic peoples. It does not seem to have been known in Oceanica.

Clearly, the so-called Aryans of Germany have no prior claim to this symbol, thought to have been intended to represent the sun, so widely distributed are its occurrences. The early Anglo-Saxons called it "fylfot," four-footed. The Greeks termed it "gammadion," an arrangement of four gammas. Modern Germans refer to it as "hakenkreuz."

For countless years the "odd little symbol that spins gayly around the world," as H. G. Wells said in his Outline of History, has been a happy token to untold thousands. It is a sorry thing to see it being made into an emblem of religious and racial intolerance and persecution. But it does not seem the world needs to abandon the symbol to any such fate. Think of all the obsessions it already has outlived.

Proud Muse, I do not ask for silver strings
Of haughty lyre to sound my humble dreams;
Some wild Pan's reed would better suit my themes,
For I would voice the wrongs of low-born things.
Of soft-eyed ox beneath the whip's harsh stings,
The patient beaver architect in streams
Where lie concealed the steel trap's savage gleams,
A wounded sparrow with its broken wings.

I'd sing of sacrifices mutely made
By those that bend beneath the yoke and rod,
For them St. Francis of Assisi prayed,—

Though silent at our feet their gifts are laid,
Mayhap they're born within the heart of God.

Maybe You'd Better Just Skip It.

The barber shop in the Monroe building has a coat of arms, given it by Louis Skidmore and Nat Owings when they remodeled the shop. It is a pun on the name of the owner, Al de Nord, done in the best heraldic tradition. As emblazoned by Robert Carlson: "Lavender, a shield checky with barber poles gules, party per fesse with two razors rampant, spectacles regardent, leeches couchant, and armadillo and bear salient, charged with bezants bendwise or, surmounted with De Nord star and border dancy."

IF YOU THINK the pun in a coat of arms needs precedent, Mr. Carlson cites from Oswald Barron, editor of Ancestor. The German family Manessen has on its coat of arms two armed knights attacking each other's hauberks with their teeth; the English family Eady coat of arms has three old men's 'eads, and the French family La Roche three roaches swimming. Also, motto of the English family Cust pedantically puns in Latin "Qui Cust-odit Caveat."

I often wonder what satisfaction our modern statesmen derive from their oratorical saturnalias as they mouth their ghosted wisdom over the networks. Col. Ingersoll, W. J. Bryan, Daniel Webster, and other silver-tongued giants of the past often broke out in florid flights of frenzied nonsense; but at least such conflagrations had the merit of spontaneous combustion and were not the products of a ghost-to-ghost hook-up such as is responsible for most of today's oratorical bilge. Wasn't it Oliver Goldsmith who said, "Ill fares the land to hastening ills a prey, where ghosts accumulate and statesmen decay"? At any rate, our old friend James Boswell, Esq., in "The Life of Samuel Johnson, LL. D.," did say away back in 1791:

"I am not quite satisfied with the casuistry by which the productions of one person are thus passed upon the world for the productions of another." Paul L. White.

ARTISTS TODAY unable to sell their pictures can take heart from the early experience of John Steuart Curry, the Kansas artist whose paintings are now valued at $1,000 and upwards. Not many years ago his paintings were offered at $15—with no takers. Curry, Grant Wood, the Iowa artist, and Thomas Benton of Missouri, leading middle west artists, all attended the Chicago Art Institute school, and all had similar early sales experiences.

A NEGRO SHANTY TOWN that might have been transplanted from the fields of Georgia is tumbled unceremoniously about the railroad tracks at the edge of Kankakee, Ill. The dwellings are built of sheet iron, old boards, paper, and any other available material. The inhabitants are picturesque in their shabbiness. They spend their lazy days fishing in a tiny adjacent pond, gathering junk in dilapidated pushcarts, and their nights in revival meetings or revelry. Some column stooges riding through the street recently—it happened to be on Good Friday—saw a human skeleton dangling from a tree. Was it a housewife doing the spring cleaning, airing the family skeleton? They are still puzzling about it.

HEMOLYTIC JAUNDICE—A FAMILY AFFAIR.

IN one of our chats a few months ago it was pointed out that should a stoppage occur in the outlet channel leading from the liver to the intestine, the absorption of bile into the blood would be responsible for jaundice. The yellow pigment then would invade all the tissues reached by this fluid.

There is another type of discoloration of the skin, however, which until recent years presented a puzzling problem. This form is due not to blocking of the bile ducts but to the fact that the spleen becomes too active in demolishing red cells. As we know, the oxygen-carrying discs which float along with the circulation have a relatively short span. They are born, develop to maturity, function, and then die, and the spleen plays an important rôle in breaking them up and making their chemical components available for re-use.

The length of life of a single red cell is not known exactly. Various estimates indicate that from one-thirtieth to one-twentieth of the total number in the body are disposed of in each 24 hours. This gives us a fair idea of the daily demands upon the blood forming organs, chiefly the bone marrow.

In the process of destruction the coloring matter produced [bilirubin], if in excess, may settle in the epidermis and give us the typical sallow tinge of jaundice. There is no hindrance to the outflow from the liver, but in this disease the red corpuscles are so fragile that they go to pieces prematurely. The result is that the yellow dye is manufactured too rapidly. It cannot be excreted fast enough and hence some of it finds its way into the cuticle. But the deposits are not as deep as in obstructive jaundice and many individuals with the disorder may possess a skin that is only slightly darker than normal, although as its severity increases or decreases the shade may become more or less pronounced.

Curiously enough, this is a family disease. C. A. Doan found 40 out of 75 relatives in thirteen families to be afflicted. Often the first symptom was an enlargement of the spleen, attended with abdominal discomfort. A few cases are discovered in the course of a routine blood examination, as occasionally the condition may resemble pernicious anemia. The average count of the red cells is about three million, sometimes as low as two million [normal, 5 million], and, as we would expect, the smaller the number the more active are the factors leading to their disintegration.

Apparently the procedure is not maintained steadily and persistently. There are cycles in which the malady will remain stationary and then become greatly aggravated, the red elements dropping to a low level scarcely compatible with life. Fortunately, in the removal of the spleen, we have a sovereign remedy. If this is accomplished the cells rise rapidly to normal or above. The ideal period for surgery is during a remission interval, when a patient can better stand the strain. Transfusions are valuable at the time of operation.

In the majority of cases the jaundice appears early in life and once established usually persists. There is no interference with the heart rate and rarely the slightest tendency toward itching. If the patient suffers a digestive upset or should he fall under an emotional strain, the hue is likely to deepen.

It goes without saying that the general health should be looked after with great care during the course of the ailment, both before and after operation, as lowered resistance is likely to accentuate the trouble.

ABOUT KIDNEY STONE.

F. M. writes: Can a kidney stone be dissolved and under what conditions? Is an operation absolutely necessary?

REPLY.

There are no measures which will dissolve fully formed calculi, but the drinking of water freely to reduce the specific gravity of urine is apparently of value. The diet should be rich in vitamin A and consist largely of fruits, milk, vegetables, and a small quantity of meat or other nitrogenous foods. When the calculi are large, numerous, or impacted, surgical removal is indicated.

AFTER HAVING MEASLES.

G. F. G. writes: How long must a child be kept in the house after she has had measles? She feels well, but has a slight cough. When can she have a bath?

REPLY.

A warm bath, with the child properly protected, can be given almost any time. A half hour to an hour out of doors in the sun will be beneficial. Do not let her return to school until cough has ceased entirely.

EXAMINATION ADVISED.

Mrs. L. writes: What would cause a fatigued feeling and quicker breathing, in a woman 36 years old, after performing the regular household duties?

REPLY.

Fatigue and shortness of breath after engaging in routine activities may be due to hyperthyroidism, anemia, some heart weakness, or possibly kidney involvement. At any rate, a careful examination is in order.

SECURITY FOR LOAN.

Lowell, Ind., April 24.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I own some real estate [the home I live in]. Several years ago I needed some cash and borrowed $5,000 from my husband.

1. I gave him the deed to this property as security.

2. The deed [of trust] was in my name. I am now divorced and the court granted me the home.

3. Can my ex-husband sue me or put a lien on this house for the $5,000 I owe him and which I have not paid back? He still has the deed, although it is in my name. G. S.

1. It is not clear whether you mean that you gave him the usual trust deed securing a note, or an outright conveyance containing no reference to the indebtedness.

2. We see no reason why the deed to you should have been in trust.

3. You have in substance stated that he already has at least a lien. If, as seems probable, what he has is a trust deed securing a note covering his loan and if the divorce court took no action on this loan, then he would be in a position to foreclose.

THE COAL DEALERS' LICENSE.

Chicago, April 22.—We wish to correct an erroneous impression carried in the various newspapers concerning the retail coal dealers' license.

For your information, the United Coal Merchants' association, representing several hundred of the better class coal dealers in all sections of Chicago, originally sponsored the present ordinance for the sole purpose of regulating the industry, thus protecting the public from irresponsible so-called coal dealers that have infested the industry the last few years. The city of Chicago did not seek the license and the amount of the yearly fees of $50 is fair considering the additional cost involved in connection with the regulation which is aimed to protect the buying public as well as the legitimate coal dealers.

Contrary to published reports, the coal dealers' license is popular among 95 per cent of the coal dealers, both large and small, and is opposed by a small minority comprised chiefly of what is known in the coal industry as snow birds, people who go into the coal business in the fall of the year and quit in the spring, going into some other line.

The claim has been made by the attorney representing these snow birds that he represents 700 coal dealers who will be forced out of business if this license is enforced. This is positively an out and out misrepresentation of facts because the court records show that only twenty-six so-called dealers were involved as represented by their attorney. Also, two Circuit court judges refused to grant this group an injunction, and by their actions prove that the ordinance is valid.

The court proceedings on April 20, before Judge Tremko in the License court, were the result of several continuances granted by that court since last January in deference to the two Circuit courts where the petitions for injunction were pending, and as a result of the refusal of these two Circuit court judges to grant the injunction, the city of Chicago is now proceeding with the enforcement.

For the information of the public, the three recognized groups, representing all large and small coal dealers in Chicago, are actively supporting all the ordinance, and the large crowd in the License court on April 20 was largely members of these groups.

Over a period of four months coal dealers have been approached for contributions, ostensibly for the purpose of defeating the ordinance, and dealers should be careful about making contributions for this purpose in view of the courts' decisions.

We assure you of our and all legitimate coal dealers appreciation for space of this item in your paper.

GEORGE FORTH,
President United Coal Dealers' association.

EINSTEIN AND THE THIRD INTERNATIONAL.

Chicago, April 19.—With reference to the article in the Voice of the People which appeared in your issue of April 19 by the self-crowned fair minded American, George Urie Stevenson, I wish to repudiate his statement that Prof. Einstein attended the communist congress of the Third International at Moscow in 1929. I am very much suprised that THE TRIBUNE should allow such a malicious misstatement to be printed in their paper.

Citizens of Einstein's type are more than welcome by any real fair minded American. You do not find the Einsteins spying on the American shores and airports. It is self-evident that Mr. Stevenson is an admirer of Kunze and his band, who want to bring Nazism to America. J. ARBITER.

POLITICS AND THE FARM.

Waukon, Ia., April 21.—The farmers, the real honest to goodness farmers, are at last up on their hind legs and ready to throw off the Roosevelt and Wallace yoke of crop control. If they do this, and they can, we can believe we are still free born Americans and not a race of slaves. We can even get down to work and raise an appetite as well as food, which is more than WPA workers on relief can do.

Are half the people on government pay and relief and if they are isn't it about time the other half begin to see their plight and do something about it? If the pay is to be handed out will it be handed out until nothing is left?

Is the farmer working only to pay the government men who boss his farm and cut down his acreage? If the farmer is able to make a living [and if he isn't he isn't farming] does he need a politician to tell him what he is allowed to do?

The theory of scarcity is the way to starvation. With a miserable people we will get dictatorship. That sort of government is not for Americans. I am glad that the country is coming alive.

The following paragraph from "Freedom, Farewell," by Phyllis Bentley, refers to Cæsar's Rome, but it is food for thought:

". . . by accusing the arrogance and stupidity of the patrician, the selfishness of the wealthy, the timidity, confusion, and delay of the moderate, well meaning men, the greed and fickleness and stupidity of the people. Add to these the immoderate rewards offered to political ambitions by our means of government as a means to riches, and there is a soil fit to breed ambition, conspiracy, bribery, and violence to corrupt all Rome."

Are we planning to corrupt America? Let's have a house cleaning.

M. J. BARTHELL.

UNMARKED IMPORTS.

Upper Darby, Pa., April 19.—I am taking the liberty to write this letter to call your attention to the fact that there is an attempt to pass in the house of representatives in Washington a bill [H. R. 8099] that will eliminate the marking of imported products. Thus the consumer will never know whether he or she is buying American made or coolie made imported products.

I think such an attempt to create a free dumping ground in this country for foreign made goods should not be permitted; and a bill of this kind should be discarded. OSCAR WILLEN.

SOUTH OF SEVENTY-NINTH.

Chicago, April 19.—Are the people living south of 79th and State reaching for the moon when they ask for more cars that go beyond 79th? The Chicago Surface Lines company seems to think that is the city limit, but the crowded cars indicate there are many people living beyond there. We'd appreciate more cars marked State-119th.

J. F. WALTERS.

AGRICULTURAL PLANK.

Downers Grove, Ill., April 20.—A suggestion for No. 9, under "THE TRIBUNE'S platform for Illinois and Chicago":

"Leave the farmers alone."

F. D. LINDLEY.

GETTING OUT THE VOTE.

Chicago, April 20.—In all the words spoken and written of the large Democratic vote in the recent primary, no mention is made of the principal reason therefor—vote buying. In my own precinct calculations based on the facts available indicate that the Democratic votes cost $1 to $1.50 apiece.

"Checkers" were paid $3 to $5 for a half hour or an hour of their time. The Republicans had one checker for each precinct to serve the entire day. Pay was for services rendered. Democrats were employed as checkers merely for a stall. The real purpose was vote buying, or, as it is sometimes called, purchasing.

A young man in the building where I live received $5 for merely distributing campaign literature to each of the nine apartments in the building. There are five voters in the family.

The mother of another family of five voters, whose combined income is over $100 a week, hired out for a limited time as checker—five bucks. Corner campaigners were being changed all day—at so much per. There was no shortage of them. Every time a voter hove into sight they popped out at him from doorways, basements, and alleys. People on relief were told to ask for a Democratic ballot. Need I add or else?

All that may reflect no credit on Republican voters. Doubtless there are a lot of voters, Republicans and Democrats alike, who can't resist an easy dollar. The point I make is that it is inaccurate to ascribe the big switch in its entirety to such things as a desire for fair play and a regard for the merits of the case.

T. S.

PRIMARY ELECTIONS.

Chicago, April 20.—In the light, particularly of recent events, it strikes me that Judge Jarecki reflected the mass judgment of the Chicago electorate when he stated, as quoted by the press, that the "voter should have no limitation placed upon him as to which ballot he wishes to take" in a primary election.

At a meeting of the Rogers Park Civic league, held April 20, the point was made, and particularly well received, that to restrict a primary voter to the party of his earlier allegiance is to deny him the full freedom of the ballot—that it tends to perpetuate the rule of the party in power—is a flagrant violation of constitutional guarantees.

Social and economic problems—political issues and personalities—are today subject to too rapid change to evaluate with the judgment, and from the viewpoint, of two years ago.

In consequence the league moved without a dissenting voice to petition the legislature immediately to consider the advisability of amending the Illinois primary laws to restore to primary voters their full and constitutionally guaranteed freedom of choice in nominating qualified candidates. Regrettably they are not too numerous. CHARLES WEST,
President, Rogers Park Civic League.

PRESSMEN FIGHT SEN. BERRY RULE IN MASS PROTEST

Charge Stalin Methods Used in Union.

Several hundred members of Franklin local, No. 4, of the International Pressmen's and Assistants' Union of North America met in the hall at 2840 North Central Park avenue yesterday to protest the conduct of officials of the union. The meeting was called by a committee which recently filed a suit in the federal court seeking to compel the union officers to hold an election and make an accounting of funds.

Senator George L. Berry (D., Tenn.), international president, who is defendant in the federal suit, was denounced by several speakers. Gabe Kutzko, chairman of the protesting committee, asserted that Senator Berry ruled over the union with the same autocratic power that Dictator Stalin exercises in Russia.

Last Election in 1928.

Kutzko said he has been a member of the union for nine years, but has never had a voice in the selection of the local officers. The last election, he said, was held in 1928 and the last accounting of union funds was made four years ago.

"Because we have filed this suit we have been called communists," he said. "It is Senator Berry and the other officials of the union who can be compared to the commissars in Russia."

Before the meeting Kutzko said the Franklin local has 2,200 members, who pay an average of $125 each in annual dues. The international organization has approximately 46,000 members, each of whom pays dues of $25 a year to the international officers. The parent organization has an income in excess of a million dollars a year.

Election Support Asked.

Another speaker said that a month ago a letter from the international officers was read at a meeting asking the members to support the reelection of Senator Berry. One member, it was charged, was ejected from that meeting when he pointed out that "support" could only mean financial aid and protested the levying of any assessment.

Attorney James E. Daniels explained details of the lawsuit. Members of two other locals of the union in the city are contemplating filing similar suits, it was reported.

Twelve raiding squads from the state's attorney's office seized fifty slot machines in taverns and restaurants in Niles and Niles Center last night. Owners of the thirty places visited were warned they would be arrested if gambling machines were found on their premises again.

In raids Saturday night state's attorney's police confiscated sixty slot machines in Stickney, Lyons, Summit, Argo, and Calumet Park.

Lieut. Thomas Kelly, who directed the raids, said the owners of places where machines were found may be called to his office during the week to be questioned about the identity of the owners of the gambling devices.

UNION DISPUTE DELAYS SALMON PACK IN ALASKA

Seattle, Wash., April 24. — (AP) — A deadlocked union jurisdiction dispute threatened tonight to cut off the country's $45,000,000 annual Alaska salmon pack as well as the jobs of 20,000 men and 80 per cent of the northern territory's revenue. Ships, plants, and men lay idle as the critical time approached for the fish to start moving in the world's richest red salmon area.

A worker-employer dispute over wages had just been settled when the trouble arose between two unions—one A. F. of L. and the other C. I. O.

MILK DRIVERS' STRIKE SETTLED BY COMPROMISE

Aurora's strike of union milk wagon drivers was ended last night with a compromise. The drivers will get an increased basic pay of $32 a week for six months, and $34.50 a week after that. Certain commission advantages also were granted. The employers won out on their refusal to agree to a closed shop. The strike began a week ago Saturday, but deliveries were made through Wednesday. There have been no deliveries since Thursday except to hospitals, institutions for the aged, and homes where there are children.

Amos Goes for Stroll, but Police Pool Their Prisoner

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—The nightly stroll of the frisky Amos, one of the two Catalina Island sea lions just acquired by Prospect park zoo, brought police radio cars to the park's fringe again tonight for the third successive evening. As it had done on Friday and Saturday, the young sea lion got over the three foot fence surrounding the pool. Police radio cars overtook the sad eyed, short whiskered mammal as it was flapping toward downtown Brooklyn and herded it back to its abode.

FRANCO FORGES NEW FRONT LINE EAST OF TERUEL

'Mop Up' Cavalry Pursues 15,000 Loyalists.

HENDAYE, France [at the Spanish Frontier], April 24.—(AP)—Spanish rebel troops in Teruel province, smashing deep into government territory north of the Madrid-Valencia "lifeline" highway, forged a new front in eastern Spain today.

Gen José Varela sent cavalry and infantry units into the San Just mountains to mop up what he estimated as 15,000 government soldiers who were reported outflanked and surrounded as a result of rebel capture of Aliaga yesterday.

Varela described as a "war of pockets" the conflict that raged today along a curving front between Teruel, the battered provincial capital 130 miles east of Madrid and 75 miles northwest of Valencia, and Albocacer, 65 miles northeast of Valencia.

Four Columns in Operation.

Until yesterday when the rebels smashed the government defense of Aliaga, this sector of Teruel province had been quiet since Varela's army recaptured the provincial capital on Feb. 22.

Four separate rebel columns were carving out new pockets in the tumbled terrain between Teruel and Albocacer.

One drove northeast from Teruel to meet another moving from Aliaga 32 miles away. Their objective was to cut off a large government force operating along the valley of the Alfambra river.

A third column moved east from Aliaga toward Villarluengo, which is 10 miles away, to meet a fourth driving west from the San Marcos mountains just north of Morella. Morella is about 60 miles northeast of Teruel and less than 30 miles from the eastern coast.

The principal objective of these moves in the chessboard of rebel strategy was to weld a solid front from Teruel to the Albocacer-Alcala de Chisvert sector, about 25 miles north of Castellon de la Plana.

Castellon de la Plana, the axis of the government's effort to prevent expansion of the rebel foothold on the Mediterranean, is 40 miles northeast of Valencia.

While Varela directed operations from Teruel, troops under Gen. Bautista Sanchez swept into Aliaga after a bitter struggle outside the city. Thousands of government militiamen fled into the San Just mountains—six brigades of them, some reports said.

Rebel airmen scouted the mountains northeast of Aliaga and reported the government troops massing, apparently for an attempt to blast their way down a tortuous highway from Ejulve to Villarluengo.

Teruel Front Revives

(Story in adjoining column.)

The Teruel front in eastern Spain became active again yesterday when Gen. Franco launched drives to weld a solid front between Teruel and Albocacer. Columns from Teruel (1) and Aliaga (2), captured Saturday, were driving toward each other. Columns from Aliaga (3) and the San Marcos mountains (4) also sought to effect a junction. Heavy dotted line locates front.

RING LARDNER'S SON JOINS SPANISH LOYALIST FORCES

BARCELONA, April 24.—(AP)—James P. Lardner, second son of the late Ring W. Lardner, American author, quit today as a war correspondent to enlist in an artillery unit of an international brigade fighting with Spanish government forces. He is 23 years old.

"I think something has to be done by somebody," said Lardner, who came to Spain three weeks ago as a reporter for the Paris edition of the New York Herald-Tribune. "I've seen the front and I know what I'm going into."

Lardner worked on the city staf of the Herald-Tribune in New York before going to Paris eight months ago. In his rôle as a correspondent, Lardner spent two nights with an international brigade headquarters at the front where he went through a bombardment.

PRIMARY BATTLE FOR U. S. SENATE STIRS KENTUCKY

Chandler and Barkley to Wage Hot Fight.

flip-flops that make acrobats out of bosses, he is now in the anti-Chandler camp.

Over this the Brennan organization has become somewhat split.

Ex-Gov. Ruby Laffoon and Mr. Rhea are with Senator Barkley. J. C. Beckham, former governor and former senator and now head of the public utilities commission, is a supporter of Gov. Chandler.

Washington for Barkley.

Chandler has a powerful state machine. Back of Barkley is a federal machine, aided by the Louisville boss, who is the power behind the throne here at the city hall. The Chandler camp says there are signs that Washington is starting to turn on the heat for Barkley.

The politicians are speculating on how much politics may be played through Kentucky's share in the 4½ billion dollar relief fund asked by the President, if it should get through congress. Neither side is underestimating the strength of the other.

Adding to the joyousness of the coming fracas are presidential dreams. Control of the Kentucky delegation to the next Democratic convention is one stake.

Some who have sniffed the breezes at Washington insist or suspect or surmise, whichever word one likes, that if Chandler wins and controls the delegation in 1940, James A. Farley would shed no tears, although the White House is hammer and tongs for Barkley.

Whichever man wins, the presidential ticket seems involved, with plenty of "ifs" attached. If Roosevelt does not seek a third term, talk around here is of bees already buzzing in this region. If Barkley wins his friends say it would put him in line for nomination; if Chandler wins and overthrows the White House spokesman his shouters fancy it would trot him out in front for at least the vice presidency, maybe the presidential nomination itself.

Permanent Registration Law.

Control of part of the election machinery in Louisville is being contested as a preface to the campaign. For years vote frauds and ballot box scandals have been charged in state campaigns. In 1935, the rival Rhea and Chandler camps accused each other of voting graveyards. Ballot box stuffing, intimidation by armed men, cheating in the count, were charges hurled by both sides.

In Harlan county, a coal county, the troops were called out, not unusual. The Rhea followers accused the opposition of trying to steal the election. The Chandler people retorted in kind, charging among other things that in Logan county, Rhea's home, more votes were cast in some precincts than there was population according to the census.

After he became governor, Chandler got through a bill for permanent registration throughout the state. Louisville since 1930 had what is called a model permanent registration system.

More recently a bill, aimed to purge the lists of dead names and fraudulent registrations, has been in prominence. A state board of registration and purgation has been set up, and in each county a board has charge of hearings, challenges, and the removal of names from the lists. This created quite a furore. The anti-Chandler camp insists the bill was aimed at Louisville, with a view of placing control in the state-house at Frankfort.

POLISH COUNT IS KILLED WHILE HANDLING GUN

[Copyright: 1938: By the New York Times.]

WARSAW, April 24.—Count Karol Romer, foreign office chief of protocol, was found dead this morning on his Inwald estate in South Cracow. He had been shot through the head.

According to an official statement Romer, who was 53 years old, was killed accidentally while handling a gun in his bedroom. It was reported his sister-in-law, Countess Roderik Romer, also was shot in the arm and that last night he had violently disagreed with her. His father died a few weeks ago and there were rumors of a family dispute over his will.

Twelve years ago Romer married the daughter of former Rumanian Foreign Minister Mitilineau. Rumors that he committed suicide were not believed by his friends.

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

April 24, 1938.

AAA Scheme Opposed

SEVENTY-FIVE PER CENT of the farmers interviewed by Tribune reporters in Du Page, Will, Cook, and Lake counties within the last few days are against the government's AAA crop control program and are dissatisfied with their acreage allotments for corn and other crops.

Views of farmers given below indicate their attitude toward the AAA plan:

James O'Connor, Naperville and Plainfield road, Will county, who operates 200 acres: "I usually raise 85 to 90 acres of corn and the AAA committee wants to allot me only 60 acres. I can't see it. I have to be able to feed my cattle. I rent the farm and the landlady must be paid. Are they trying to stop growing corn here so they can buy it in South America? Are they going to do as they did when they killed the pigs? They had to have lard shipped here from Europe very shortly after."

Herman Staffeldt, on the same road, operates 200 acres: "I raised 78 acres of corn last year and they want me to cut down to 52 acres this year. I can't do it. I have a heavy mortgage on my farm. I can't afford to let my land rest. The government will pay you for plowing under your soy beans and other crops but who is going to pay the interest on my mortgage. I am not in a position to gamble—we must eat."

"Not Fair, Not Honest."

S. J. Patterson, in the same neighborhood, operates 125 acres: "It's not fair and you can't make anything a law that is not honest. Allotments on farms are not alike; some are way off. I have a corn allotment of 29 acres on my 125 acre farm and a 210 acre farm down the road was allotted 76 acres. If that is honest, then it's too deep for me. It's making jobs for hundreds of surveyors and investigators to be paid with farmers' money."

F. D. Wilson, another farmer on the Naperville-Plainfield road, operates 300 acres: "Last year I grew 265 acres of corn for feed. This year the government allotted me 91 acres. I will run my farm as I see fit and follow my plan to plant 150 acres of corn. I have corn left from last year's crop, otherwise I would not make such a reduction. I have no assurance that there will not be a short crop this year."

A. J. Brossmar, also in the Naperville-Plainfield neighborhood: "I operate a 204 acre farm. I am against this crop control law. I want to raise what I please. I wonder if they think this AAA program will help the votes next November?"

R. C. Clow, Plainfield-Naperville road, operates 209 acres: "The AAA program is not fair. I grew 85 acres of corn last year. They want me to grow 57 acres this year. I had to buy grain when I raised 85 acres of corn; where would I be if I followed the plan?"

O. K. for Lazy Farmer.

W. M. Harbecke, Mannheim road and Lawrence avenue, Cook county: "I am against the crop law. It's nothing but another way to dictatorship. No one is going to tell me how and what to raise. It may be O. K. for the farmer who is too lazy to farm. No matter what my corn acreage allotment is, it would not be enough to feed my dairy cattle."

Herman Boesche, Higgins road near Mannheim road, operates 80 acres: "It looks like the government men will be on our farms as much as we are, and will run our farms. In the long run we pay the government investigators. There is too much red tape for me. My family has made a go of this farm for more than 60 years and we can continue to do so if the government will leave us alone."

Andrew Madsen, 80 acres on Irving Park boulevard in Du Page county: "It is all right for those corn belt farmers who want to hibernate through winter. When I want to live as a Russian I'll go to Russia."

Similar views were given by many other opposing farmers in that section, including Emil Homeyer, Martin and John Stark, and Oscar Ingstrom.

Few Favor AAA Plan.

Few farmers were found who favor the AAA plan. Henry Gewecke at Mannheim and Higgins roads in Cook county, who has a 127 acre farm and is a member of the Leyden township AAA committee, favors the program. "It is the best thing that could happen," he said. "It will raise the price of corn. The lack of education makes it hard for the average farmer to understand the program; that is the reason for so many objections to the program."

Arthur Boesche, a neighbor and also a member of the same committee, says, "I am satisfied with my allotment on my 40 acre farm. It is a good program for farmers to operate under if they understand it."

Views of other farmers on the AAA question will be given in this column later.

Heifetz Induces a Frenzy with Lalo Symphonie

BY EDWARD BARRY.

We, who sat in the Civic Opera house last evening taking heady drafts of Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole" from the hands of Jascha Heifetz, were strongly tempted during the frenzy induced by this music to fix a flower or a sprig of elephant weed becomingly in our hair and to go singing and fiddling off across the hills to meet the dawn. Realizing, however, that we should probably meet nothing more wonderful than the police and that it would be hard to explain our conduct to any one who had not been present at this passionate and subversive performance, we decided to stick around for the Mozart concerto which was to follow.

It was not in the Lalo, pungent and exciting though his tone and his meters became, that Mr. Heifetz proved most conclusively that Milstein is not the only violinist in the world [a belief to which this town has been inclining because of the latter's four sensational appearances here this winter]. In the Handel sonata and the Mozart concerto which surrounded the Lalo piece the sheer rhetorical power of his phrases [to say nothing of their sculptured beauty of form] gave the performance an immediacy and a throbbing, personal quality which too many of Heifetz's past presentations have lacked.

He was roundly applauded by an excellent house.

April is Radie Britain month. This resident composer's Prelude to a Drama was played recently by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, and her Rhapsodic Fantasie received its first performance in the Great Northern theater yesterday afternoon at the hands of Rose Goldberg, pianist, and the Illinois Symphony orchestra. Izler Solomon conducted.

The piece has the familiar Britain fluency of idea and richness of instrumentation. The soloist was a poised and expert lady who did not seem to be bothered in the least by the fact that the orchestra completely drowned her on occasion.

Miss Goldberg appeared also in a first Chicago performance of Alexander Tcherepnine's F Major concerto and turned out to be fully capable of apprehending and projecting the music's exquisitely perverse moods. Here were fine feeling for tonal beauty and a genuine communicative urge.

Will Blalock, Chicago baritone who appeared in recital at the Woman's club auditorium yesterday, sang Handel and German lieder with a broad nobility of style and with admirable care for expressive phrasing. His voice is not yet clear of texture nor are his tones always round and well supported.

CHICAGOANS ENTER OPERA

BY CECIL SMITH.

An audience of generous size and conspicuously pleased demeanor attended the second performance of the newly organized Chicago International Opera company in the Auditorium theater last night. The bill was "Carmen," with Fidelia Campigna, a newcomer to Lake Michigan's shores, in the title rôle. Two Chicagoans made their operatic debuts, Anita Burnee as Micaela and William Meigs, a freshman at Lake Forest college, as Morales. Dino Bigalli conducted with spirit and firm command.

Most of Miss Campigna's previous experience has been in Italy and South America, although she has already sung in America at Cincinnati's summer opera. Her vocal method is reminiscent of Maru Castagna's—a big, resonant chest quality pushed up as high as it will go. Her Carmen was crude and unrestrained, yet projected with an intuitive sense of the theater that kept her always in good rapport with her audience.

Miss Burnee showed us a voice of more than usual operatic promise, pleasingly lyric in quality, and marred only by instability in the top register. Sidney Rayner of the Metropolitan, a much improved vocalist since his last performance here in 1935, sang Don José with sturdy, unaffected tone. In addition to a highly competent chorus, the others in an honest, likeable production were Milo Luca, Hazel Sanborn, Ilma Bayle, Giuseppe Cavadore, Kai de Vermond, Howard Berhalter, and Ben Landsman.

Vincenzo Celli appeared with his ballet company of twenty-two at the Studebaker theater yesterday afternoon, offering three new compositions, a ballet drawn from Catalani's opera "Loreley," a "Pizzicato Polka" to music by Drigo, and "Contrasts in White," a contrast between modern and traditional dance idioms, danced to Ponchielli's "Dance of the Hours."

The last of these novelties served chiefly to prove Mr. Celli's grasp of ballet principles and his total innocence of all grasp of modern movement. More successful was "Les Sylphides," gracefully done according to Edna McRae's choreography.

The program was decidedly disappointing after Mr. Celli's promising recital of a year ago. There are talents galore in the company, but except for Eloise Moore their work is unformed and tentative, and needs more rehersal than it apparently had.

The annual Civic Musical festival in Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon gave a happy audience a chance to hear several hundred children sing songs charmingly under the direction of Marx Oberndorfer.

At the same hour Don Pierson, baritone, sang in the Civic theater, disclosing a warm voice produced too far back and marred by a prominent tremolo.

Non-Moderns Give Charm to Arts Club Show

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The annual exhibition of paintings and sculpture by professional members of the Arts club opened yesterday at the club to continue to May 14. It is a stunning show, partly, if not entirely, on account of the presence of a large number of most admirable paintings, nonmodern in character.

Cecil Clark Davis is responsible for the most beautiful portrait in the gallery, the portrait of Emily von Romberg, a prepossessing young woman dressed in black with a gold chain and cross setting off the simplicity of her costume and a red quill in her chic, tiny hat, corresponding in color with the red of the leash that brightens the demure presence of the trim dachshund held under one arm. This is a beautifully composed and painted portrait.

Gerald Frank gives us another stunning canvas in his painting of two little Cairn terriers, perfectly groomed, which stand on the seat of a gorgeous chair looking wistfully out of the window at the mongrel dog with his boy master that is free to run as he pleases with no thought of pedigree, manners, or style. Several of the artists have brought back memories of Mexico, but the most brilliant Mexican scene is that offered by Charles P. Killgore, "Mexico," a line of white arches, with dark trees behind, against a blue sky, and in the foreground steps dotted with peasants in black and white.

Pauline Palmer gives us a vivid, luminous impression of Gloucester in "The Old Smoke House." One can fairly smell the salt on the air and hear the murmur of the tide, while the yellowed grass and storm beaten wharf are rich with suggestions of the sea. Anna Lynch shows a magnificent flower still life, "Zinnias and Cornflowers." More delicate in character is the bouquet of green orchids in a glass vase beautiful with shadows, "From the Swamps of South Carolina," by Amy Irwin McCormick. This has great charm.

Maude Phelps Hutchins is showing again her interesting head in sculpture of Mrs. Inez Cunningham Stark. Sylvia Shaw Judson offers an exquisite torso of a young girl, "Prima Vera," beautiful in its sensitive quality. Another sensitive piece of modeling is found in the "Standing Nude" of John Storrs, one of those perfect little statues too seldom seen.

Among the artists who contribute to the success of the exhibition are Paul Trebilcock, Nina K. Griffin, Thomas E. Tallmadge, Agnes Potter Lowrie, Lucie Hartrath, Clay Bartlett, Antimo Beneduce [with a magnificent water color], Harriet Blackstone, Ethel Crouch Brown, Florence Wilkins Furst, Clark J. Lawrence, C. Warner Williams, and Buell Mullen.

Distinctly first among the modern nonrepresentative work is the curious abstraction, "Construction R H 60," by Moholy-Nagy. It sets one a fine puzzle.

Miss Follansbee Chooses June 11 as Wedding Day

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE Mitchell D. Follansbees and his sister, Mrs. William G. Hibbard, are hoping that June 11 will be a fair day, for on that afternoon in the gardens of Mrs. Hibbard's Winnetka home, weather permitting, Miss Susan Follansbee will be married to Robert Cameron-Smith.

The wedding will be a small one, with only relatives and a few intimate friends present to hear the Rev. Gerald Moore of St. Luke's procathedral in Evanston read the service at 5:30 o'clock. Miss Margaret Ennis will be Miss Follansbee's only attendant, and her brother, Mitchell Follansbee Jr., will be Mr. Cameron-Smith's best man.

Miss Follansbee's sister and brother-in-law, the Helmut H. von Erffas, will come from Princeton, N. J., for the wedding, and their younger sister, Miss Julia Follansbee, will be at home from Bryn Mawr. The Von Erffas are moving here to live next fall.

Jean McIntosh Engaged to William C. Heyn.

Of interest is the announcement Mrs. Walter McIntosh of Lakewood estates, near Barrington, formerly of Wilmette, is making today of the engagement of her daughter, Jean Clark, to William Carveth Heyn, son of Mr. and Mrs. William P. Heyn of Evanston.

Miss McIntosh is a senior in the school of speech of Northwestern university, but she will not be graduated this year, for she is sailing abroad May 18 with Mr. and Mrs. Henry Harriman of Boston to be away until Aug. 1. Miss McIntosh and the Harrimans are going directly to Geneva, Switzerland, and then will travel in England, Scotland, and Ireland.

Mrs. McIntosh and her daughter spend their summers at Lake Geneva, Wis., but Miss McIntosh will not join the summer colony there until she returns from Europe. Mr. Heyn was graduated from Northwestern university and is engaged in business in Chicago. No date has been set for the wedding.

Natalie Crandall, Former Chicago Girl, to Wed.

Mr. and Mrs. Noble Crandall of 124 East 71st street, New York, formerly of Chicago, today are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Natalie, to Dr. Sydney L. Harris of New Rochelle, N. Y.

Miss Crandall attended Miss Weaver's school, Andrebrook, in Tarrytown, N. Y., and Andrebrook in Munich, Germany. Dr. Harris is a graduate of McGill university in Montreal. The wedding will take place next month.

Mrs. Bernard J. Mullaney left yesterday, after spending a few days in Chicago to fly back to Santa Barbara, Cal., where she, Mr. Mullaney, and their granddaughter, Betty, have been spending the winter. Mr. and Mrs. Mullaney and Betty will sail May 23 from Los Angeles aboard a Norwegian freighter that carries only

I've never seen such jewels in all my life, and that goes for the collections of Mrs. E. T. Good Morning!

"Test Pilot" mayn't be the greatest aviation picture ever made, but it's one that I wager will get under your skin more than any you've ever seen before!

Jim, crack test pilot of the Drake fleet, must go up into the skies to try out new aircraft, and Ann [Mrs. Jim], and Gunner, mechanic and Jim's best friend, must stay on the ground and await his return, knowing—or feeling that they know! —that one day ——!

But fate plays a strange trick when the time of the actual crash comes—and it is Jim, not Gunner, who must face Ann with the sort of news she has always expected. . . .

Here is a picture so beautifully acted and forcefully directed, that further description, it seems to me, would be superfluous. As Ann, Myrna Loy takes her place among the great emotional actresses; Clark Gable as Jim gives one of the most sympathetic and colorful performances of his career, and as for Spencer Tracy—well, that academy award certainly went where it should!

The supporting cast headed by Lionel Barrymore is aces.

The picture is long, but so thrilling—so utterly absorbing—that you lose all count of time. It will make anybody who has anything to do with the movies proud of that fact.

See you tomorrow.

SYNOPSIS.

Gordon Stone returns to Barranca after eight years in prison. Gordon was framed by Lyn Gilbert, owner of the Bar B B ranch, and his foreman, Curt Ford. Because Gilbert's niece, Karen, warns Gordon and Jack Turnbull in time to save them from a posse of Gilbert's riders, her uncle imprisons her at his ranch. Gordon and Jack start a campaign against Gilbert. Heading a band of men, Gordon captures four Bar B B riders rustling cattle belonging to Gordon's uncle, John Fleming, owner of the J F ranch. Gilbert offers his rider Cheyenne Karen's hand in marriage if he will kill Gordon. Gordon and Jack are tricked into a trap by Cheyenne and Buck Hayes. They capture Hayes, but Cheyenne rides off, taking Karen with him. Gordon and Jack investigate at the Bar B B ranch house.

INSTALMENT XLIII.

AN ENFORCED CAMPING TRIP.

The clop-clop of horses' hoofs drummed into the yard. The same thought was in the mind of all of them. Cheyenne had not brought Karen back to the ranch house. Gordon walked to the window and looked out. He turned, his face grim and harsh.

"We'll go downstairs," he said.

"Is it Karen?" Glenna asked.

"No. Let's go. We'll leave the lamp here."

The woman was frightened. "Who is it?"

"You'll know in a minute."

As they reached the foot of the stairs the front door opened to let in Sing Toy and Curt Ford.

The foreman stood in his tracks and peered past his wife at the two figures in the dim light back of her. It took him an instant to recognize them. That eye-flash of time advantage was enough for Gordon. He moved forward with swift light tread, gun in hand.

"Take it easy, Ford," he advised softly. "Reach for the ceiling. . . . Close the door behind you, Sing Toy. We'd like a word with you, too."

The foreman glared at his enemy. Written on his face were various emotions struggling for dominance—astonishment, doubt, hate, rage. His arms lifted, swept forward swiftly. He plunged at Gordon, pinning his arms close to his body.

Instantly the night was alive with tumult. Glenna screamed, Sing Toy bolted through the door and filled the night with the clamor of his shouts for help. In the hall were sounds of shifting feet, of grunts, of whistling breaths, of crashing furniture. A gun roared.

The threshing bodies tore the stair rail down as if it had been cardboard. Ford's sinewy hands found Gordon's throat and tightened. He had his foe pressed back against the treads. In the struggle the revolver had been knocked from the fingers of Stone.

Turnbull, looking for his chance, found it at last. His gun lashed down on the head of the foreman. Ford staggered back against the wall. The hinges of his knees gave way and he collapsed.

It was time to be gone. Jack could hear the slap of running feet, the shouts of the Bar B B men on their way from the bunk house.

Gordon groped for his revolver, but gave up the search as the first runner flung open the door.

The Bar B B men hesitated. In the darkness they did not know foe from friend. This gave the intruders a chance to reach the back door.

From the floor Ford snarled an order. "Get him, boys. It's Stone."

The feet of the ranch hands clumped through the hall and out of the kitchen in hot pursuit. To Glenna, flung into a clothes closet by the rush of men, came the crash of revolvers.

Her husband struggled to his feet, clutching at his soggy hair.

"Where are you, Glenna?"

"I'm here," she answered. "You hurt, Curt?"

"He tried to kill me, the wall eyed son of a gun. Get water and fix me up. I'll be in the living room."

He staggered into the room and sank down in a chair. His wife brought water and bandages. She lit a lamp and attended to his hurt. The wound was a superficial one, though he groaned a good deal.

"Karen got away," Glenna said, in fear and trembling.

"They must have come to get her," Ford said.

His wife did not correct him. If he thought so, that would be a good out for her.

"That's just what they did," the foreman continued angrily. "Came here to collect her while I was away. She must have fixed it up with that wolf Stone somehow. I got no use for that li'l vixen. If the boys spilt some lead in her as well as in her two friends I wouldn't go into mourning. Nobody would be to blame but herself."

"I hope she doesn't get hurt," Glenna said timidly. "She's really a nice girl, Curt, when you get to know her."

"How can she be nice when she goes racing round with outlaws and bad men all the time?" he demanded. "Girls today ain't what they used to be . . . I wish the boys would get back with at least two scalps."

The Bar B B men drifted back to the ranch singly or in pairs. Some of them were quite sure they had wounded the interlopers, but did not know how badly. The hunted men had reached their horses, mounted, and ridden into the darkness. On foot the pursuers had not been able to follow.

They rode hours before Cheyenne stopped at a line camp in a pocket of the hills on the edge of the desert.

"We'll outfit here," he told Karen, and helped her to alight.

"Are we going farther? Or is this where we stop?"

"We haven't started yet," he told her. "This is going to be a real camping trip you'll remember all yore life. We'll step into this shack. Ladies first."

Karen passed through the dark doorway, not without trepidation. They were alone. Probably no other human being was within miles of them. This man had chosen to step across the line which separates the average citizens and the hunted man. The thing he was doing, in a frontier country such as this, called for death swift and sure. In such a case a desperado might well reason that he could pay the penalty only once anyhow.

But Karen gave no sign of the fear rising to her throat. She knew that if she went panicky it would tell against her.

To her surprise the rough cabin was neat as a pin.

Cheyenne swung round a home-built chair for Karen and told her to sit down. From the bed he took blankets and packed them into a tight roll which he roped. Into a sack he put coffee, flour, salt, bacon, beans, and other supplies.

"Here's a jar of raspberry jam," he said, looking up. "You like it?"

"Don't take it for me," she replied indifferently.

He grinned. "That's what you say. Different here. I'll put in the jam. I want this to be a nice camping party for you."

Karen rose and strolled to the kitchen table. He was between her and the door, but he watched her closely. "What's the idea? I invited you to sit down."

"I've been sitting for hours," she answered.

She opened idly the drawer in front of her and took out a carving knife. "I don't suppose I could do it," she said, as if to herself; and to him, "You have to be a professional, don't you, to slip a knife into a man under the fifth rib."

Her insouciance made him chuckle. "I've never used a knife, so I wouldn't know about that. The way to find out would be to try. . . . By the way, toss me that pig-sticker. I'll take it with us. And get me the fry-pan and the coffee pot."

Karen started to do as told, but stopped with the frying pan in her hand. There came to them the voice of somebody singing. She guessed he was riding toward the cabin. In her a wild hope stirred.

"Bud Cowell," Cheyenne said, after listening.

Cheyenne flung open the door to meet him. "Come right into the party, Bud, and bring yore song along with you," he invited.

"Hello, Cheyenne, you old son-of-a-rooster, how come you here?" Cowell shouted.

Light Makeup Fashionable This Season

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

(Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Syndicate, Inc.)

If you are blessed with a fair skin, then this summer you'll have nothing to worry about. The trend toward lighter makeup started last winter. James Barker, head of a Hollywood makeup department, advises that women with milk white skins will be able to use pale powders and cool, subtle rouge. For years women have been covering their delicate coloring with dark hued cosmetics, but this year they'll be themselves.

This doesn't mean they're going back to the white powder and magenta rouge mode. Women used this type of makeup years ago because the various subtle shades hadn't been developed. Now with the scores of blends and hues and with the skill which has been developed by women in applying cosmetics, lovely effects may be achieved.

Pink and white blondes, such as Joan Fontaine, Miriam Hopkins, and Carole Lombard, no longer will try to hide their natural coloring; they will bring out all its beauty with pale flesh powder and blush pink lipstick. Those who have pale creamy complexions will use light rachel powder and rose rouge to get the right effect.

Fair redheads and those with the true peaches and cream complexion, such as Ginger Rogers, Anne Shirley, and Lucille Ball, also look well with light rachel powder, but bluish pink rouge spoils their color harmony. Soft orange pink is a better choice.

Women with olive or tanned skin, such as Katharine Hepburn and Barbara Stanwyck, have a harder problem, because it is always easier to darken a fair complexion than it is to lighten a dark one. They shouldn't try to make their skins too fair, but should concentrate on having a clear complexion. A pretty, fine textured skin looks fairer than one which has many little roughnesses to cast shadows. A powder that matches the fairer portions of the face should be used and blended in well.

Above all, these darker skinned maidens should not try to cover up the real complexion with a heavy application of whitish powder. That will only result in a pasty look, and when the powder wears off, the real color will show through. A foundation with good covering powder—a liquid or a tinted cream should be used to disguise the skin and help the powder stick. After this important start, be sure to remember to tone down your rouge and lipstick.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Some one asked us the other day why makeup should be different for evening, why what became her face all day should be unflattering in the evening.

Naturally, the face doesn't change, but the lighting does. Ever notice when you made yourself up under electric lights how when you got out in the street you had much too much on? Strong lights, especially yellowish ones, wash out colors. If you make up by electric light and rouge until you get the effect that looks best in the mirror, you'll have too much on when you go outside. For daytime it's best to make up in bright daylight or—à la the beauty establishments — under those daytime lights.

For evening it's better to use more makeup, because you'll most certainly be under lights. Use warmer shades, too—so you won't be washed out looking.

If you'll notice carefully you'll see that night lights affect your nail polish shades, too. Of course, you don't know what the lighting will be when you go out of an evening, but it's a safe rule to make up a bit more generously than you do for day.

One of the nicest things about making up especially for evening is your chance to make the most of deft eye makeup. You can really let yourself go on eye makeup at night. Use more mascara than you would for the day—and be sure to tip the lashes with oil or cream to give them a sheen. And do use your eye shadow. Try your hand at experimenting with colors. If you wear a neutral shade—a very little bit of it—during the day, try something daring at night. Green is especially effective. Some browns and violets look too smudgy.

Evangelical Conference Transfers Two Pastors

New church assignments were announced last night at the conclusion of the 94th annual Illinois conference of the Evangelical church in the Logan Square Masonic temple auditorium, 2451 Kedzie boulevard. Only two changes were made in Chicago. The Rev. H. B. Schaeffer goes to the Lockwood Avenue church, and the Rev. H. R. Neuman takes over Trinity church. Bishop George E. Epp, D. D., of Naperville, made the assignments. During the day nine young men were ordained as ministers.

Children's Hospital Tea at Fortnightly Tomorrow.

The hundreds of women who will go to the Fortnightly for tea tomorrow afternoon at a party for the White Elephant rummage shop are searching through their houses today for useful and ornamental objects they can take to the club as the price of admission to the party. Later the goods will be sorted, priced, and sold at the shop, which is conducted for the benefit of the Children's Memorial hospital, and although the directors of the hospital say to bring any old "white elephant" around the house that one is tired of, the gifts their guests bring usually are far too handsome to be classified as "junk."

The entertainment at the party is to be music and a magician, the same magician that Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine, one of the hospital's rummage committee members, had for a dinner party she gave last winter for her debutante granddaughter, Miss Betty Armour. Mrs. Valentine, Mrs. Secor Cunningham, Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell, Mrs. Charles W. Dempster, Mrs. Frederic W. Upham, and several other women who are on the hospital board will be hostesses at the tea.

Gilson, associate professor of economics at the University of Chicago, will speak on "Ladies, Women, and Controversial Questions." Luncheon will be served after the meeting.

Two benefit card parties on the afternoon program are one the Cathedral Shelter guild will give at the St. James' Community house, 666 Rush street, in the interest of the Cathedral shelter, and one at the Drake hotel for the benefit of St. Mary's Home for Girls. Mrs. William J. Haedtler is president of the guild; Mrs. George W. Traver is general chairman of the party for St. Mary's home.

Many Tricks for Slenderness

WOMAN'S MORNING DRESS.

Designed for the plump figure only, this house frock is a masterpiece of trickery. It conceals overweight remarkably well, at the same time preserving chic and comfort. This pattern should serve you for several dresses, each in a different color or print. Fabrics for this type of garment usually are beautifully inexpensive, so you can go on a regular shopping spree.

The neckline may be square or V, the choice you make depending upon just how much overweight you are. Lace edging, ruffling, or braid may furnish the trim around neckline, cap, sleeves, and pockets. The waist dips up into the bodice, a slenderizing effect, and the skirt has neither plaits nor gores, but is cut for fullness.

This dress is a dream to launder, since it has so little detail. Select a pretty print or a monotone, as you choose.

Style No. 2061 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 35 inch material, with ⅝ yard of 35 inch contrasting and 2¼ yards of binding or ruffling.

SEE WHAT THE STARS ARE WEARING! Clotilde's big new 32 page Summer Fashion Book presents 10 photos of fashions selected by famous movie stars, also detailed descriptions of 124 other fascinating new dresses and outfits which you can easily make yourself. Get a copy at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower. Price, 15 cents, or 20 cents for the book and one Clotilde pattern, if ordered at the same time.

The Housewife

Now that housecleaning days are here it's nice to know there's a cleaner on the market that will remove dirt, grease, and grime from many things and also be easy on your hands. This product is not new. It's stood the test of many years.

It comes in a creamy paste form and is grand to use on woodwork painted walls, floors, linoleum, bathtubs, fixtures, refrigerators, and silverware, and metal, as well. And it's easy to apply. Simply put a little of it on a clean, dampened piece of cheesecloth and wipe your white woodwork or whatever with it. No hard rubbing or scouring is necessary. Then, wipe it off with another clean, damp cloth. That's all there is to it.

It is excellent for cleaning floors, for it removes accumulated grease and dirt, oil or wax, and polishes and prepares the floors for new finishes.

Grape Juice Is Adaptable, as Recipes Reveal

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1938: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The grape juice you canned last fall, or the grape juice you buy in bottles will transform a plain gelatin salad or a simple dessert into something beautiful in color and exquisite in flavor.

Grape juice is delicious all by itself for a breakfast drink or a dinner appetizer, of course, but it is so adaptable to various types of food that its use shouldn't be limited.

Grape Juice Bavarian Cream
[Serves 6 to 8]

1½ tablespoons unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1½ cups grape juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon orange juice
⅓ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 cup whipping cream

Soak gelatin for five minutes in cold water. Heat grape juice and dissolve gelatin in it. Add lemon and orange juice, sugar and salt. Chill until slightly thickened and fold in the cream, which has been whipped. Chill in individual serving dishes or in a large mold. Serve very cold, garnished with a little more whipped cream.

Grape Juice Sauce for Ham

3 tablespoons cornstarch
⅔ cup sugar
1 cup grape juice
1 cup water
Juice of 1 lemon

Mix cornstarch and sugar and add liquids gradually, stirring over low heat. Cook, stirring constantly until the sauce is thick and clear. Serve hot with sliced baked ham or with broiled ham.

Spiced Grape Juice
[Serves 6]

2 whole cloves
½ small stick cinnamon
1 quart grape juice
2 cup water
2 tablespoons sugar
3 tablespoons lemon juice

Tie spices in a cheesecloth bag and simmer with the remaining ingredients for fifteen minutes. Remove spices and serve hot. This amount will make more than six servings if punch glasses are used.

Grape Juice Mousse
[Serves 10]

2 teaspoons unflavored gelatin
1 cup grape juice
1 tablespoon lemon juice
⅓ cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
¼ teaspoon almond extract
1½ cups cream, whipped

Soak gelatin for five minutes in ¼ cup of the grape juice. Dissolve over hot water and add remaining grape juice with lemon juice, sugar, and flavorings. Cool until partly thickened. Fold in the whipped cream and freeze in refrigerator tray.

Grape Ice Cream
[For 3 quart freezer]

1 quart coffee cream
1¼ cups sugar
2½ cups grape juice

Mix cream and sugar. Add grape juice slowly, stirring constantly. Freeze in a mixture of 1 cup rock salt and 3 quarts finely chopped ice. When frozen, pack in ice and salt for at least an hour to let the cream ripen.

Jellied Grape Juice Salad
[Serves six]

1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
¼ cup cold water
1 pint grape juice
⅓ cup sugar
½ cup orange segments
¾ cup grapefruit segments

Soak gelatin for five minutes in cold water and dissolve in heated grape juice. Add sugar and chill until partly congealed. Fold in fruit and pour the mixture into a large ring mold or six small ones. Chill until firm.

Strawberries and rhubarb, on the market in increasing quantities, make excellent preserves to fill winter-depleted shelves. There are many recipes for both fruits in Mary Meade's booklet, "Jellies and Preserves from Early Gardens." This booklet is on sale for 3 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, or will be mailed for 5 cents in stamps. Mail requests should be addressed to Mary Meade.

"Papa Squirrel" Favorite Figure for Child's Quilt

Papa Squirrel.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

BY NANCY CABOT.

The squirrel is a favorite animal theme for a child's crib quilt because its antics and agility on an early spring morning capture a child's fancy. There is scarcely a child able to lisp who doesn't try to call one of these amusing fellows, and invariably will point out Papa Squirrel on the crib coverlet if any one expresses the slightest interest in the lovely applique quilt on the bed. For a small size coverlet measuring 38 by 48 inches, six applique and six plain blocks are set together in an alternate arrangement and finished with a four inch border and a half inch bias binding. Some mothers prefer to save the pattern and have every applique block representing a different bird or animal.

For a limited period Nancy Cabot offers 10 quilt patterns of her own choice at a price of 10 cents for the group (12 cents by mail). Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower.

Prairie Club Holds Shakespeare Fiesta in Wooded Canyons

Peru, Ill., April 24.—(AP)—Nature enthusiasts of the Prairie Club of Chicago mixed Elizabethan gusto with early Illinois derring-do and came out of the wooded canyons of historic Starved Rock today to terminate what sponsors considered the nation's most unusual celebration of Shakespeare's birth 374 years ago.

The two day program, carried out entirely without assistance from professionals, got under way Saturday with a hike over the old Indian trails of the Starved Rock country, enlivened by the singing of Shakespearean songs and the quoting of sylvan passages from the poet. In the evening the club devoted virtually all its indoors program to Master Will's works.

It was inevitable the nature lovers would choose as best expressing their feelings the bucolic comedy, "As You Like It," which was given in pantomime and recitation.

The 101 men and women attending the affair heard the familiar "Hark! Hark! The Lark," from "Cymbeline," and many of them kept up a rapid fire of quotations.

The high jinks concluded today with additional hikes and outdoor singing. Club leaders said they hoped the Shakespeare fiesta would become an annual affair.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1938: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: A little dispute about the proper defense of a game contract. Needless to say, the contract was not defended successfully, hence an argument, a wager, and an agreement to abide by your decision. This was the hand:

"The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	1 no trump	Pass
3 clubs	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

"The bidding is not a question, although we all agree that North's no trump response was on the optimistic side and that a pass would have been more logical. I was West and the play went as follows:

"I opened the seven of hearts. Dummy ducked, East played the ace, and declarer the king. East returned the king of diamonds. I overtook with the ace, cashed the queen, dropping East's jack and continued with the ten. Declarer ruffed, cashed the ace, king of clubs, and ruffed a club. He then drew trumps, after which he led a heart to dummy and discarded his remaining losing club on a good heart. In all we took only three tricks, the heart ace and two diamonds, and the contract was fulfilled.

"Now for the contentions. My partner concedes that my opening lead was all right and I concede his diamond return was equally correct. He maintains, however, that after I had cashed two diamonds and was able to count that declarer 'out,' I should have shifted back to hearts in order to kill the dummy by removing a possible second heart from declarer's hand. I maintain that, for all I could tell, declarer's discard of the heart king at the first trick might have been quite honest and for me to lead another heart would be to give declarer an entry to dummy that he might never be able to reach without my lead. What's the verdict? Yours truly,

I sustain your partner's contention. After you had collected the heart ace and two diamond tricks your chance of defeating the contract depended on one of two things: First, that your partner had a natural trump trick; or, second, that declarer would have to concede a club trick. If the former were true you would be safe and it did not matter much what you did; if the latter you would have to take steps to preserve the club trick that was potentially yours. Declarer was marked with the ace and king of clubs from his strong bidding. Nothing could prevent him from ruffing one club in dummy, but if he attempted to ruff two clubs your own spade ten could be put in as an overruff. Therefore your one consideration should have been to kill one of dummy's heart tricks in case declarer had another heart. If he had no other heart, but did have a five card club suit, you probably were helpless because you could tell that, under that circumstance, the lead of the ace-king of clubs and ruffing of one club would establish the rest of the suit. Since the only thing against which you could guard was the condition that actually existed, it goes without saying that you should have directed your efforts to that objective. After cashing two diamonds the heart return undoubtedly was correct.

New Strapless Evening Gowns Come to Town

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Excitable gentlemen really have something to sizzle about: the strapless evening gowns. They're fascinating models, startling to behold even on a hanger. All the shoppers like them and they are going out fast.

Skirts are full and swish over silk slips. The bodices are boned to fit tighter than your own skin and fully guaranteed to stay in position. And THERE ISN'T A SHOULDER STRAP IN SIGHT. Sounds naughty, but don't be disturbed; these new arrivals have more charm to the inch than anything you can find.

See the black lace and net beauties, the cobweb lace in vertical bands in the full skirt alternating with the fine net. There are a couple of frilled flounces around the hemline and frills of the black lace all around the top of the bodice. Waistlines are smaller and smoother than ever, the better to accentuate the rib hugging outlines of the bodice.

Lovely white gowns of similar attraction come in lace, net, and other sheer summery materials. Later, and for prices that will make even a hoarder beam, there will be crisp, cool cottons and linens made in the same streamline, bones, snug bodice, full skirt and a total disregard for straps.

These are definitly new and beguilingly feminine. Heartbreakers every one of them, whether of lace, net, chiffon, stiff taffeta or clever cottons and other tubbable materials. Worn with a coquettish ribbon tied around the neck, or a corsage of old-fashioned flowers tucked in the center of the bodice, you'll be the belle of any spring ball.

DEAN AND CUBS WHIP CARDS, 5-0; SOX LOSE

DIZZY YIELDS ONLY 4 HITS AS 34,520 CHEER

Scores Two Runs in Home Debut.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The great Diz Dean, the man with the $185,000 right arm, is the same old showman and still a pitcher. He combined his two talents yesterday in his home debut as a Cub and as an enemy of the St. Louis Cardinals, who once were his fellow workers. With apparent ease, the graduate cotton picker quieted his former companions on a yield of four hits and went parading along with his new pals to a 5 to 0 victory before 34,520 spectators.

The Great One's flair for showmanship was evidenced in only one way. That was in the four hits and the shutout. There was none of the ribbing with which he usually adds to the discomfort of his would-be assailants. With one eye on a possible increase in pay and the other on the thousands who came to see his act, he was all business. He just pitched—perhaps not as he did in the days when his arm was sturdier, but nevertheless well enough to indicate that he intends to have a hand in the next world series.

No Heroics for Dizzy.

Dean, even though four hits constitute an impressive performance, apparently preferred not to attempt any extraordinary heroics. Diz put his faith in his dipsy-do stuff, and, judging by the four hits they harvested, the Cardinals must have been more than shocked.

The great man ran across only two troublesome spots during his maiden nine inning venture of the season. They were troublesome only by contrast with the perfect or near perfect innings. In the second, because of the first of two passes he issued, and a double, Dean had two on bases, with two out. In the sixth the Cards had another pair on the bases because of a pass and a single after two were out. Dean promptly called a halt and from that point to the finish didn't let an enemy batter reach base.

Has Trouble with Moore.

The only man who seemed to think Dean wasn't exactly a terror was Terry Moore. The latter settled for nothing less than a pair of two-baggers, neither of which carried him any farther than second base. Moore was exactly half of the four men who reached the middle station. Only one of these four moved as far as third. The first of Moore's two doubles was responsible for this. But in another way, Moore wasn't so impressive. He erred twice in the field, each time assisting the Cubs to a run.

While Mr. Dean's job was well done, he wasn't the only fellow in the winning cast. The boys, including Augie Galan, in left field for the first time, and Tony Lazzeri at short because of a hand injury suffered by Bill Jurges, not only defended flawlessly but hit when hits helped. Dean, himself, got in on some of the latter. He made two complete trips around the bases, getting one start on a blunder by Moore and the other on a single.

Macon Not So Easy.

Max Macon, a lefty from the Cardinals' Columbus, O., farm, was Dizzy's adversary from start to finish and the Cubs didn't take many liberties with him. He stopped them cold for two innings, but they hit him for two runs in the third, when Hartnett, Hack, and Collins wrapped singles around the first Moore miscue. They nicked him for another in the fifth, when Herman collaborated with Diz as a hitter. In the sixth Moore's other error and Hartnett's second hit added the fourth run. Lazzeri's second hit accounted for the concluding run in the eighth.

When the last putout was recorded Dean thought his day's work was finished. It wasn't. Before he could move two steps off the mound he

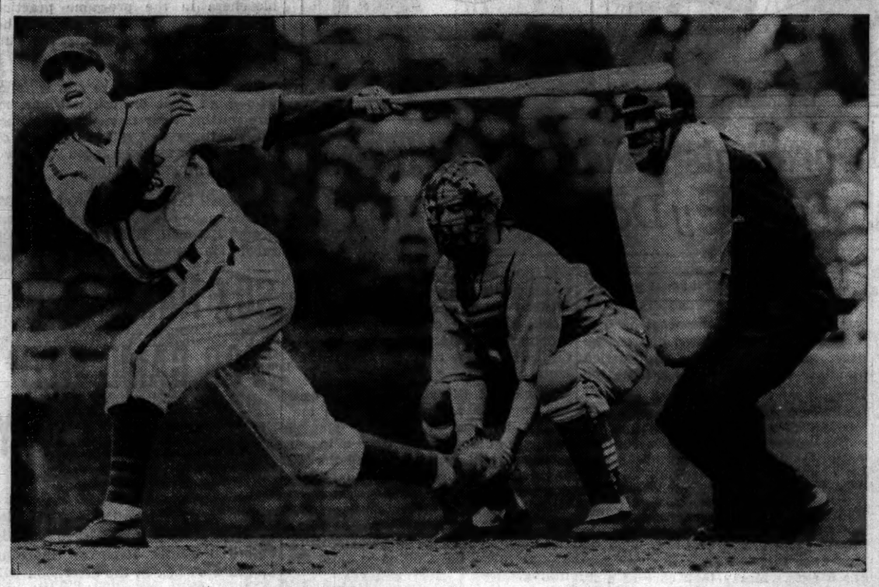
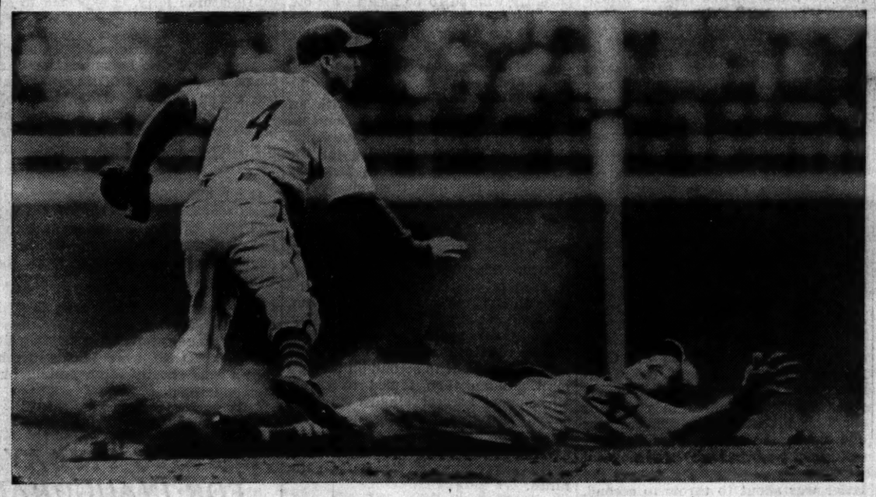
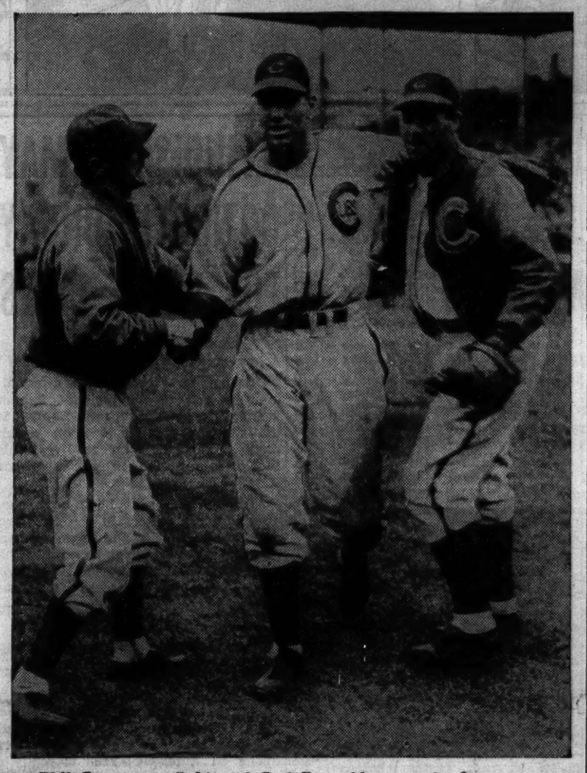
EVERYBODY'S HERO—AND IT'S ALMOST TOO MUCH FOR DIZ!



Dizzy Dean, the Cubs' $185,000 pitcher, looked the part yesterday as he held his old mates, the Cardinals, to four hits and shut them out, 5 to 0, in Wrigley field. This picture, taken in the sixth inning, shows Dizzy missing a pitch for a strike. He then grounded to the infield for a forceout. He got one hit in three times up and scored twice. The St. Louis catcher is Mickey Owen and the umpire is Larry Goetz. [TRIBUNE Photos.]



Pitcher Max Macon of the Cardinals is out on a slide into second base after Don Gutteridge had grounded into a double play in the third inning. Billy Herman relays the ball to first.



Phil Cavarretta (left) and Carl Reynolds were the first teammates to congratulate Dean after he had retired the last Cardinal batter in the ninth inning. Then the rest of the club and a host of fans surrounded Diz as he struggled to the clubhouse.

Earl Sande Explains How Stagehand Leaped to Fame

BY FRENCH LANE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Louisville, Ky., April 24.—Busy Earl Sande paused long enough while the chores were being done in the barn of the Kentucky Derby favorite, Stagehand, this morning to disclose how he and his assistants in Maxwell Howard's racing establishment taught Stagehand to put on his famous stretch run.

"There was a time when Stagehand thought it was more fun to finish second or third than it was to win," Sande began.

"This became very evident when he lost race after race as a 2 year old, winding up the year without a victory to his credit. Everybody in the stable who had watched him prepare for these races knew he had ability and were confident that if he put forth a little more effort he could have whipped the horses that had finished in front of him.

He Was Indifferent.

"But he simply didn't want to.

"He was playing a grand game of follow the leader. He wanted to be Charley McCarthy, not Edgar Bergen, out there in front doing all the work.

"We grew a few gray hairs endeavoring to figure out how to give him more ambition.

"Soon after we arrived at Santa Anita last winter Mr. Howard's colt Fencing reached top racing condition. He could beat every horse in the barn. The horses all seemed to know it. We picked out Fencing to serve as Stagehand's work mate.

"Our plan was to let Fencing get far out in front early, then pull him enough to permit Stagehand to pass him.

"After a few such maneuvers Stagehand actually began to enjoy finishing in front. He grew sort of chesty. One day we took four horses out with him. The exercise boys were to see to it that Stagehand passed them all before they reached the finish line. Then and there he became the happiest horse in our stable.

"Finally we sent Stagehand out with Sceneshifter and Fencing. They were to go a mile and a sixteenth this time. The boys in the saddle were all told to do their best. Instructions were obeyed. Sceneshifter and Fencing didn't have to be pulled this time. At the end of a mile Stagehand rolled past them.

He's an Apt Pupil.

"Stagehand, a big, old country kind of horse, was a good boy after we started teaching him his favorite lessons. He probably would be very angry with me if he knew I had told how we fooled him."

Rumors are flying thick and fast that Sande expects to win the Derby on May 7 with Mr. Howard's other 3 year old, The Chief.

"If Stagehand can't win, I hope The Chief does," Sande said. "At a mile The Chief might beat him, but at a mile and a quarter I'm afraid Old Stage will muss him up quite a bit."

Lawrin Works Out.

Lawrin was the only Derby colt to go in for a serious training move today. He reeled off a mile in 1:42 3-5.

Here on the Derby scene the "common enemy"—the operators of future books—held their annual reunion today.

Their representatives slipped into

One I Wanted Most to Win, Dizzy Avows

BY STEWART OWEN.

Well, Ol' Diz got past the game he wanted most to win!

"That's the one I wanted to get over," the great Jerome Herman Dean said as he sat on the rubbing table in the Cubs' clubhouse after his four hit victory over his former teammates, the St. Louis Cardinals, "and a shutout, too."

Dean talked as dozens of flash bulbs glared in his face. Photographers had taken virtual control of the dressing room, elbowing ball players out of the way and stepping into the trays in which the Cubs were packing their uniforms preparatory to leaving for Pittsburgh.

"Can't you guys take any pictures of anybody else?" Manager Charley Grimm asked. "You got a million pictures out on the field."

And the rest of the Cubs chimed in with a stream of invective. Dizzy merely smiled through it all, quietly following the photographers' instructions as he talked. There was nothing blatant or boastful about him yesterday afternoon. If anything he was a bit deprecatory about his achievement.

His Arm Feels Swell.

"My arm feels swell," Dean said, "but I didn't have the stuff I had in Cincinnati when I beat the Reds last Wednesday."

"You didn't look as though you were bearing down very much," some one suggested.

"Yes, I was. I was bearing down all the way, all the time."

"Did you throw any fast balls, except those two to Johnny Mize when you struck him out in the fourth inning and made him pop up in the sixth?"

"I was throwing my fast ball all the time, first just a little, then pretty hard. I was loosened up right from the start."

"What do you think of Gabby Hartnett as a catcher?"

"O, he's great," replied Diz, with enthusiasm. "All I had to do was put the ball where he asked for it. Low, inside or out, it was just the right pitch when he called for it."

Gabby Knows Their Weaknesses.

It was suggested that Dizzy might have had an easy time with the Cardinals because he knew their weaknesses at the plate.

"I didn't have to know their weaknesses," he grinned. "Gabby knew them all. We talked it all over before the game, Gabby and Grimm and I, and I pitched just the way we agreed."

"It looks like you'll win thirty games now," a reporter said.

Diz shook his head and grinned through the neck aperture of his shirt as he posed for another photographer.

"I don't know," he said with a touch of unwonted modesty. "I wouldn't say that yet."

"But you've already got two in—how many days is it?"

"Two in four days," Diz replied before any one else could figure it up. Actually he has scored two victories in five days.

"Ah told you last summah you'd be heah with us when you was buyin' those hogs," Walter beamed. "You ain't gonna find no bettah people to work fo'."

"I know that already," Diz said.

Tex Gets Cheer, by Mistake.

While Dean went through the business of undressing, being rubbed down and dressing again, a crowd of several thousand waited beneath the clubhouse runway for a glimpse of its hero and another chance to cheer him.

Most of them had fumbled their first opportunity when the Cubs marched up from the dugout to the dressing room. Tex Carleton, who resembles Diz slightly, had preceded him up the steps and the crowd had yelled its congratulations to Tex, telling him what a great game he had pitched.

Under cover of these misdirected cheers, Diz reached the clubhouse with only half the attention that was rightfully his.

SPARTA DEFEATS CELTICS TO TAKE U. S. SOCCER TITLE

Win 2d Game, 3 to 2, and Series, 6-2.

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—Sparta Garden City today gave Chicago its first national soccer championship when it defeated the St. Mary's Celtics of Brooklyn, 3 to 2, before 10,000 in the final contest of the two game, total goal series. Sparta triumphed, 3 to 0, last Sunday in Chicago.

Sparta's 6 to 2 advantage for the series accurately gauges the superiority of the Chicago team, which was playing in its first national final.

Disdaining to play safe and pack their goal mouth to protect their three goal advantage, the Spartas went on attack immediately and gained a five goal series margin before the eastern open champions scored their first goal.

MacDermott Again Stars.

Jimmy MacDermott, Chicago center forward who was sent to a hospital following a collision late in the first game, again was the outstanding player, figuring in all three of today's Sparta goals, two of which he scored himself. He counted the series' first goal in Chicago.

Today the first Sparta goal came after twenty-two minutes of play. Jimmy Wolf passed to MacDermott, whose try hit the crossbar, but on the rebound Frank Trimmell scored. Six minutes later MacDermott counted from Trimmell's cross on the left, and Sparta carried this 2 to 0 advantage into the second half.

Brooklyn Finally Scores.

The first Brooklyn goal came after 15 minutes of play in the second period, Johnny McEwan passing to his brother, Willie, on the left wing and the latter driving the ball past Silovsky. After another 10 minutes of battling the McEwans again collaborated for a goal to tie the score at 2 to 2. On a corner kick Johnny laid the ball up well to Willie, who shot. Silovsky, in attempting to clear, deflected the ball into the goal.

Twelve minutes before the final whistle MacDermott again scored on John Tomich's assist. Lineup:

HEMSLEY AGAIN SUSPENDED FOR TRAINING BREAK

Detroit, Mich., April 24.—(AP)—Manager Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland Indians tonight ordered Catcher Rollie Hemsley to return to Cleveland under an indefinite suspension for breaking training following the Tribe's 9 to 4 victory today over the Detroit Tigers. Hemsley also was fined $250, Vitt said.

Rollicking Rollie, whose playboy antics caused him to be sent home during the Indians' training season, ran into Vitt in a hotel lobby while celebrating today's victory, in which he caught Bob Feller and connected for two hits.

Three Dayton Players Injured in Auto Crash

Reidsville, N. C., April 24.—(AP)—Three members of the Dayton, O., baseball club of the Middle Atlantic league were injured, one seriously, in an automobile accident today.

The ball players' car overturned when the driver tried to avoid hitting another car. The gasoline tank was punctured and the automobile enveloped by flames. Eddie Murphy, 20, of Cairo, Ill., was badly burned. His condition was said to be serious.

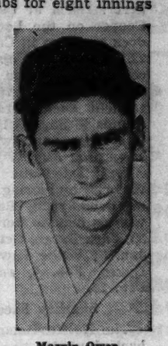
BROWNS SCORE IN NINTH FOR 4 TO 3 TRIUMPH

Chicago Gets Three in Final Inning.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis, Mo., April 24.—The White Sox, meek as lambs for eight innings against the Browns this afternoon, rose up in the ninth and tied the score with a cluster of three runs. Then Inevitable Clint Brown, relieving for the fifth time in the six games the Sox have played this season, went in and easily accomplished two outs. But two outs were not enough. The Browns then banged out a run and won, 4 to 3, to take the series, two games to one.



Marvin Owen.

The Sox frittered away five hits and left six runners on base in the first three innings, but in the next five innings only fifteen batsmen faced Jim Walkup. Then came the Sox ninth.

Walker Opens Rally.

A single by Gee Walker opened the ninth. Then followed a walk to Joe Kuhel, a single by Marv Owen, and a single by Pinch Batter Rupert Thompson. These things sent one run home and had the bases loaded with one out. Ed Linke, who had relieved Walkup to pitch to Thompson, made Pinch Batter Rip Radcliff send a double play ball to McQuinn, but after forcing Thompson at second Kress threw the ball away. When things quieted down Kuhel and Owen were home with the tying runs and Radcliff was on second. Larry Rosenthal batted for Whitehead and whiffed, and Linke tossed out Jackie Hayes.

Drop to .500 Mark.

The Sox, who boasted a percentage of .750 two days ago, were whittled down to .500 today, and tomorrow enter a series with the currently tough Cleveland Indians. The South Siders have won three and lost three, and have yet to see one of their pitchers go through. Whitehead twice has come close. He was relieved by Brown in the season opener after eight and one-third innings and he went out today to let Rosenthal strike out for him.

Incidentally, Big John is the only Sox pitcher who has had good control. He walked only one today, and that one after a 3 and 2 count while bearing down for a double play in the seventh, a double play which was set up for the next batsman as things turned out. John walked only three in the opener, which makes him something of a standout on a staf which passed eleven men in one game, nine in the next, and so on.

Ten hits, including a double by

KETTLES MEETS BELANGER; SEEKS NINTH STRAIGHT

Scheduled for Six Rounds in Marigold Ring.

Alex Kettles, South Bend sectional Golden Gloves heavyweight champion last year, will get a chance to improve his professional rating in a six round bout with the veteran Charley Belanger of Winnipeg, Man., in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street, tonight.

Belanger, former Canadian light heavyweight champion, has not boxed in Chicago since he lost a hard ten round contest to Harry Thomas in Marigold Nov. 30, 1936. Charley weighed 188 pounds.

Kettles Has a String.

Kettles scaled 208 pounds for his one round technical knockout of Russ Wasser of Minneapolis on the Joe Louis-Harry Thomas title card in Chicago Stadium April 1. It was Alex' eighth straight victory.

Kettles defeated Harold Ullmer of Milwaukee in his professional debut a year ago. He then chalked up four more triumphs before suffering his first setback at the hands of Henry Cooper on the Louis-James J. Braddock program in Comiskey park June 22. He resumed his winning ways by conquering George Williams in Western stadium July 6, but in two subsequent encounters he lost in four rounds to Paul Williams, July 12, and was stopped in two rounds by Elza Thompson Aug. 9.

He started his current string of victories by scoring a technical knockout over Freddy Berg Aug. 23. Other victims include Bernie Bowman, Aug. 30; Jack Fargo, Oct. 6; Arden Carder, Jan. 3; Willie Lewis, Jan. 17; Eddie Dykes, Feb. 7, and Bruno Dooley, Feb. 28.

Sharkey Faces Marquart.

The Kettles-Belanger match will be backed up by two contests at eight rounds between Billy Marquart and Ray Sharkey, and Tony Petroskey and Remo Fernandez. Lou Laurie faces Johnny Fairchild, and Tony De Pasquale opposes Georgie White in bouts of four rounds.

Jim Londos will continue workouts in Trafton's gymnasium this afternoon for his wrestling bout with Ali Baba in International Amphitheater Friday. Londos, who rested yesterday, has canceled all previous bookings this week to concentrate on the Baba match. As a rule the former champion wrestles three times a week.

The 195 pound Jim has asked Promoters Fred Kohler and Ed White to schedule Friday's match for one hour and a half, thirty minutes more than the limit for his previous meeting with Baba in the Coliseum north hall March 25.

On that occasion Londos defeated his stocky rival in 34 minutes and 10 seconds, so his request for additional time may be out of line.

Ruffy Silverstein and Fritz Von Schacht will meet in the windup bout of the wrestling show this evening in White City, 63d street and South Park avenue. The meeting is set for best two of three falls with a one hour and a half time limit. In two earlier encounters Silverstein won one and was held to a draw in the other. Supporting engagements bring together Art Van Saxon and Jerry Meeker, Fred Grubmier and Firpo Wilcox, Phil Malloy and Roy Rickenbacher, and Joe Dvorak and Milt Olson. F. M.

LEWIS DEFENDS TITLE

New York, April 24.—(AP)—John Henry Lewis defends his light heavyweight title for the first time in almost 10 months tomorrow night in the feature bout on this week's national boxing program.

Lewis, who has been busy in non-title bouts, meets Emilio Martinez in a fifteen round match in Minneapolis.

town on trains which came from many directions to get an eleventh hour checkup of the prospective Derby field and to find out how much money they are going to be forced to toss into the mutuel betting machines on Derby afternoon. All of them reported it the heaviest betting Derby in many years.

Remember These Names.

Stoutest wagering during the last twenty-four hours has been on Stagehand, Fighting Fox, Bull Lea, Dauber and Bourbon King. A representative of E. M. Dobkin of Chicago who attended today's sessions announced that the odds against Stagehand had been sliced to 13 to 5. He said Dobkin's latest quotations on the possible starters are:

Horse.	Odds.	Horse.	Odds.
Stagehand	13-5	Cant Wait	30-1
Fighting Fox	6-1	Wise Fox	30-1
Bull Lea	8-1	Dah He	30-1
Menow	8-1	Redbreast	40-1
Bourbon King	10-1	Gov. Chandler	40-1
Nedayz	10-1	Co-Sport	40-1
Dauber	9-1	Mythical King	40-1
Lawrin	12-1	Blind Eagle	40-1
Mountain Ridge	20-1	Stands Alone	60-1
The Chief	20-1	Dickerville	200-1
Sun Egret	30-1

A Few Get All the Play.

Odds against Stagehand have been so puny since the wagering started all the future book operators are expected to make money if he wins.

All of them likely will quit loser if Bull Lea or Lawrin should win. A Fighting Fox victory would break them about even. They are not worried about any of the others.

CHICAGOANS ROLL GAMES IN JUNIOR BOWLING MEET

Chicagoans competing in the fifth annual Royal league national junior bowling tournament rolled their games yesterday on the Kaad alleys. At the same time entrants in St. Louis, Minneapolis, Milwaukee, Cleveland, and Denver competed in their cities and this week telegraphic scores will be compared to decide the various championships.

The Pioneer club led the Chicago five boy teams with 1,821. The Richard Thompson club, 1,807, was second. Ben Zulfer's 463 was the high singles for boys and Elaine Calabrese's 375 was the best girls' total on the Kaad alleys. The best girls' team score was 1,474, by the Richard Thompson club. All contestants are under 17 years old.

SLOOP CAN'T GET TO LAKE; JACKSON HARBOR SHALLOW

The shallowness of Jackson park harbor yesterday prevented the co-owners of the 54 foot racing sloop Intrepid from sailing their boat on Lake Michigan.

Fran Byrne and Budd Mulloy, the owners, had the Intrepid painted and prepared for sailing, but the condition of the harbor forced them to keep the boat in its winter quarters.

Commodore Carl Kallgren of the Jackson Park Yacht club said last night the five largest windjammers which ordinarily moor in the harbor would not be able to get in until the mouth is dredged. Park district officials have made plans for dredging the harbor entrance, but they have set no date for the operations.

ILLINOISIANS MAY GO NORTH SUNDAY FOR WHITE BASS

BY BOB BECKER.

Due to the Wisconsin law preventing the sale of non-resident fishing licenses before May 1, next Sunday is the earliest possible day on which an Illinois fisherman may get his tackle into action in our neighbor state.

Although the pike have been running in some waters in the southern part of Wisconsin and many fishermen have had the urge to go into the state to fish, it actually is illegal for any nonresident to take a mess of fish up there before May 1.

Illinoisans May Fish May 1.

One of the big attractions during this early season fishing is the white bass. According to the Wisconsin fishing regulations the white bass season in the waters of Lake Winnebago, Lake Poygan, Lake Winneconne, the Fox river, and connecting waters opens on April 20. This is really a special season for the fishermen in that section as, with the exception of certain designated lakes and streams, the season for white bass does not open until May 15. This department neglected to point out this exception in a story published a few days ago.

When the white bass start their run before May 1 only the Wisconsin residents can enjoy that fishing. The same holds true of rock bass, crappies, pickerel, wall-eyes and other fish in the Winnebago-Wolf river area. However, Illinois fishermen who want to try their luck during the white bass run up there should mark May 1—the opening day for fishing around Oshkosh, Winneconne, Fremont, and other towns in that section. The nonresident license costs $3.

White Bass on Move.

Carl Schloesser, a resident of Oshkosh, Wis., reported yesterday that some white bass already have moved out of Lake Winnebago, so that the local fishermen were able to get a few. A spell of warm weather this week would get many more of these fish on the move. The white bass run out of Lake Winnebago into the rivers and lakes northwest of that city is one of the big fish migrations of the year.

Cardinals Held to Four Hits by Dizzy Dean; Cubs Win, 5-0

was charged by a gang wearing Cub uniforms. They whacked him on the back, shook his hands, and jostled him into a daze. It was a little too much for the glib Diz. He couldn't even talk back.

It Takes Only Seven Pitches.

Dean didn't have much to contend with in the first inning. Seven pitched balls were enough to slap down three Cards in a row. The second brought him a little annoyance from which he escaped unscathed. After Pepper Martin had flied to Galan he allowed Mize to work him for a pass. Marty took care of a fly off Padgett's bat, but what Moore produced couldn't be reached. It was a double off the wall in left center. Mize, being a leisurely fellow, stopped at third. Then Dean, apparently wanting to make Owen swing at bad balls or walk, pitched himself into a 3 and 2 hole before the batter hoisted a fly to Galan.

The Cubs' second was a modest affair. An opening pass to Demaree may have given the attending constituents an idea that something was about to happen. All that took place was Marty's fly to Pepper Martin and Galan's grounder which was turned into a double play.

Dizzy's Pride Is Hurt.

Diz's pride must have been slightly wounded in the third. He was the victim of a single by the opposing pitcher—Macon—who punched a hit past Herman to start the inning. This was taken care of in a hurry. Gutteridge bounced to Lazzeri for a double play and Collins smothered a grounder hit by Stu Martin.

The two runs on which the Cubs jumped into the lead in their portion of the third began to take shape when Hartnett singled to right for the first hit off Macon. There was one out at the time, and the second out should have been produced on Dean's roller to Moore. Just as the latter was about to throw to second, however, the ball slipped from his grip and none was retired. Hack then singled to right, Hartnett scoring and Dean going to third. Gutteridge made a spectacular play by sprinting back into short center and making an over the shoulder catch of Herman's popup. Next came a single through short by Collins, Dean scoring. Demaree's tap to Gutteridge closed the inning.

That Man Moore Again!

Dean wasted no time completing his fourth inning chores. Slaughter hit a fairly healthy liner, which Demaree captured. Demaree also grabbed a foul hoisted by Pepper Martin. For the third out Dean demonstrated successfully that Mize can be fanned. In the next inning Diz heard from Moore again. The transplanted outfielder doubled to left for the second time. This took place with one out, but the two other retirements were recorded in a hurry. Owen flied to Galan and Macon popped to Hack. All that took place in the Cubs' fourth was Lazzeri's single with two out. He tried to steal, but didn't make it.

The Great Diz was back in a base running rôle again in the fifth and scored his second run. He singled with one out. It was only a looper to short right, but it satisfied the big boy. Dean skipped down to second while Hack was being disposed of on a roller to Mize. Herman then doubled to right, and Dean ran home as fast as his long legs could carry him. Macon threw out Collins to close the inning.

Slaughter Hits One.

Dean encountered another slight flurry in the sixth. Gutteridge fouled to Hack, Stu Martin flied to Marty, and Slaughter singled to right for the fourth Cardinal hit. Dean apparently wanted to be nice to his old pal, Pepper Martin, director of the Gas House Gang's Hill Billy band, and issued a pass. This brought the dangerous Mize to the plate again. He popped to Hack.

The Cubs made it 4 to 0 with an unearned run in the sixth. Demaree popped out, Marty walked, and Galan forced him. Moore offended for the second time. He fumbled Lazzeri's grounder. Hartnett then singled to left, Galan scoring. Dean forced Hartnett on a roller to Gutteridge.

The seventh and eighth were barren as far as the Cards were concerned. The Cubs had a little fun in each of the two innings. In the seventh Herman walked with one out, but Collins slapped into a double play.

The Cubs made better use of a pass given to Demaree to start the eighth. He went to second on Marty's bunt. Galan then fouled to Owen, whereupon Lazzeri singled through short, Demaree carrying home the final run. Hartnett forced Lazzeri and all that remained was for Diz to flatten three successive batters in the ninth.

CHICAGO WOMAN LEADS IN SINGLES AND ALL-EVENTS

Cincinnati, O., April 24.—(AP)—High scoring in the Women's Bowling Congress tournament tonight brought out new leaders in two events.

The best individual performance was turned in by Mrs. Dorothy Burmeister of Chicago, who went to the top of the standings in the singles and all-events. She took the singles lead with a 608 series and collected 1,843 to oust Miss Billy Simon of San Antonio, Tex., all-events pacesetter.

Chicagoans held the lead in each division except the doubles, in which the M. Colbeck-M. Schulte combination of St. Louis was at the top by a margin of twenty-eight pins.

Cubs Move to Pittsburgh; It's Bryant Today

The Cubs moved out last night to Pittsburgh, where they'll open a three game series today with the Pirates. Clay Bryant, who was neither very good nor very bad in the season's opener in Cincinnati, will start against the Pirates this afternoon. The Pirates' pitching will be handled by Russ Bauers.

Last year, as a member of the Cardinals, Dizzy Dean scored shutouts in his first two starts. His second, achieved exactly a year ago today, was a four hit, 4 to 0 triumph over the Cubs. On that occasion he fanned ten batsmen.

Up to an hour before game time Bill Jurges refused to admit that he wouldn't be at his regular shortstop post. After a bit of fielding and hitting practice he changed his mind because of an injured right thumb. It was knocked out of joint in Saturday's game when Owen slid into him in a play at second base.

Sam Breadon, president of the St. Louis club, who sold Dean to the Cubs, came up to see how his one time chattel might perform. Breadon, with an eye on a big gate next Sunday in St. Louis, suggested that Manager Charley Grimm pitch Dizzy that afternoon. Grimm didn't approve the suggestion.

Dean, not unlike all pitchers, is proud of his hitting. He slapped a couple of drives into the left field bleachers in the pre-game practice and immediately announced that he probably would be playing the outfield in a few days.

The bleacher fans are sturdy folks who don't wait on the weather before putting their money on the line. Despite threats of rain, fully 4,000 of them were in the open faced seats two hours before starting time.

Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis made use yesterday of his honorary Baseball Writers' association card. He sat in the press box.

SOX NAME CAIN FOR GAME WITH INDIANS TODAY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

St. Louis Mo., April 24.—The White Sox will arrive in Chicago shortly before 8 o'clock tomorrow morning and at 3 o'clock in the afternoon will open a three game series with the up and going Cleveland Indians in Comiskey Park. It will be the personable Oscar Vitt's managerial bow to Chicago. Merritt Cain will pitch for the Sox and Earl Whitehill, the well matured lefty, is expected to go for the Indians.

A rumor was circulated about Sportsman' Park, home of the Cardinals as well as the Browns, that the Cards had made four runs off Dizzy Dean in the first inning. The park's new scoreboard threw down the rumor after about fifteen minutes.

Good old St. Louis weather was back today. In addition to helping Sox pitchers toward getting in shape, the fine weather helped lure 11,041 paying guests, a vast turnout for the Brownies.

The Sox won't linger long in Chicago. Wednesday night they leave for a three game series in Detroit. They expect to hear Mickey Cochrane's sobs shortly after pulling out of Englewood.

AURORA CLOSES ENTRIES FRIDAY FOR INAUGURAL

Racing Secretary Dick Leigh, along with assigning the few remaining stalls at the Aurora track and attending to other last minute details, this week will get around to taking entries for the Fox Valley Inaugural handicap.

The Inaugural is to be decided over six furlongs May 2. It carries a value of $1,500.

Entries for the event will close Friday with weights to be announced Saturday. It will be the first race run here under the new high weight rules for handicaps. Under the ruling the top weight in the Inaugural must be at least 122 pounds.

The first work sheets from Aurora indicate that Rushaway, Al G. Tarn's iron horse, may be a candidate for the honors.

CLOSE JUST ISN'T ENOUGH; SOX LOSE TO BROWNS, 4-3

St. Louis Scores in Ninth to Take Series.

Kreevich, were knocked by the two teams before the first run of the game was scored in the St. Louis third. Kreevich doubled with one out in the first inning but Steinbacher and Walker failed to get the ball out of the infield. In the second inning Kuhel opened with a single and, after two were out, got to second on a single by Sewell. Then Whitehead flied to Bell.

In the third the Sox exceeded their prior wastefulness. Hayes opened with a single and stopped at second on Kreevich's hit, a single to left. The pair advanced on Steinbacher's sacrifice. Walker tapped to Clift and Hayes was run down between third and home, Kreevich reaching third and Walker second. Kuhel was given an intentional pass, loading the bases. Clift threw out Owen.

Browns Go to Work.

In the Brown early waste column was a single by Sullivan in the first and singles by Kress and McQuinn in the second. There was no waste in the third, however. With one down, Mazzera singled to right and went to third on Sullivan's single to the same terrain. West then tripled past Kreevich, Mazzera and Sullivan scoring. West scored on Bell's 420 foot fly to Kreevich. The inning ended when Berger threw out Clift.

The Sox went out in order in the fourth and fifth innings but Walker opened the sixth with a single to left. Kuhel hit into a double play, McQuinn to Kress to McQuinn, and Clift threw out Owen.

McQuinn launched the home seventh with a double off the right field screen and stopped at third on Heffner's single to right. Walkup fanned then Mazzera drew Whitehead's first pass, loading the bases. Sullivan hit into a double play, Hayes to Berger to Kuhel.

SIEBERT TO JOIN RED BIRDS; LANDIS STUDIES HIS PLEA

Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, said last night First Baseman Dick Siebert would join Columbus of the American association as ordered by the St. Louis Cardinals pending a decision on his appeal he be made a free agent.

Landis said announcement of his decision would not be forthcoming for several days.

Siebert, who maintains the Cardinals are not giving him a fair chance to show his ability and are using him to protect their farm clubs, conferred with Landis for half an hour yesterday. Then he boarded a train to visit his wife in Dayton, O. He will report today for the series opener with St. Paul.

Siebert batted .318 for Columbus last season and the year before hit .330 for Indianapolis of the same league.

ROAMERS LOSE TWO.

The Chicago Roamers, opening their season, lost a double-header to the Bell Realtors in Winnemac park yesterday, 14 to 1 and 8 to 4. The Roamers were held to three hits in the first game and four in the second.

ONE HIT PITCHING BY SCHUMACHER; GIANTS WIN, 1-0

Brooklyn, N. Y., April 24.—(AP)—Rookie Rosy Rosen, first Brooklyn batter in the first inning, scratched a single past first base today and thereby prevented a no hit, no run pitching performance by Hal Schumacher of the New York Giants.

After Rosen connected for his hit, not another Dodger batter even came close to getting a hit. Mel Ott's second homer of the year, in the second inning, gave the Giants a 1 to 0 victory.

Schumacher needed his one hit performance, as his rival, Van Lingle Mungo, was having one of his better days. Mungo was most effective in the tight spots.

Only a few minutes before game time MacFayden was informed of the death of Joshua Knowles, 50 year old Arlington real estate man, who collapsed and died while playing golf. Knowles, who was Danny's uncle, had adopted MacFayden when the latter was 4 years old.

RIGGS TO HELP MAROONS PICK TENNIS LINEUP

Bobby Riggs, No. 2 ranking tennis player in the United States and winner last summer of a number of major tournaments in the east, will help Coach Walter H. Hebert of the University of Chicago determine the order in which his three leading team members will play in conference competition this season.

Because of the closeness in play among Capt. John Shostrom and Bill and Chester Murphy, Coach Hebert has arranged a special series of matches to be played on the varsity courts this week, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday afternoons. Riggs will play each of the three Maroon players in singles and will team with them in doubles.

As a special feature of the series Alice Marble of Beverly Hills, Cal., first ranking woman player in the United States, will make an exhibition appearance Thursday afternoon. Her opponent has not been chosen.

Matches will be played each afternoon, beginning at 1 o'clock. Although Bill Murphy ranks No. 1 in the midwest and Chicago and Chester No. 2, Capt. Shostrom, with a No. 5 ranking, has been beating them the last two weeks in practice games.

GORMAN SEEKS CHICAGO AID IN CLUB TRANSFER

St. Louis, Mo., April 24.—(AP)—Tommy Gorman, president of the Montreal Maroons of the National Hocky league, left St. Louis tonight for Chicago to discuss with possible purchasers his idea of moving the club franchise to St. Louis.

Sportsmen said nothing had come of two days of discussion with Ed C. Steffen, president of the St. Louis Flyers of the American association, which has territorial rights in St. Louis.

Indications were, however, that the trade was still a possibility, as the Flyers had not obtained a contract for use of the St. Louis rink.

Gorman indicated he was more interested in selling the Maroons outright than in moving the franchise himself.

John Benna Is a Champion Who Eclipsed Brother Joe

Terre Haute, Ind., April 24.—[Special.]—Johnny Benna, a fighting Terre Haute youth who won the 135 pound championship in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE'S Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions, is another of those undaunted warriors who refused to be worried over early failure and eventually was able to claim success.

John Benna.

As a result of his determination Johnny is a member of the Chicagoland team which will meet the champions of all Europe in the seventh international bouts in the Chicago Stadium on May 18.

Johnny also overcame the handicap of being known as the so-called lesser light of the two fighting Benna brothers of Terre Haute. But in this story the lesser light was the first to win a crown and bring home a diamond Golden Glove from Chicago.

Joe Benna, older member of the combination who went to the semi-finals in Chicago last year, was able only to reach the same spot this year, while Johnny kept going. After the Tournament of Champions Johnny and Joe formed the only brother team on THE TRIBUNE'S intercity team which won over New York.

John Goes On Forever.

Terre Haute has competed in the Chicago Golden Gloves tournament for three straight years and each time Johnny Benna has been the 135 pound contender. Each year the youngster, he's now 21, waged some fine scraps but wasn't quite good enough until 1938. In 1936 he ran into the tough fists of Pete Lello, South Bend flash, who won the title that year, early in the tourney and took a lacing, but was still trying at the end of the third round.

In 1937 Johnny won his first two bouts and then met Tommy Pallatin, another South Bend product. Many fans thought Benna deserved the verdict, but it was very close and the judges voted for Pallatin.

Then came 1938 and Johnny Benna showed the way with a clean parade of victories that saw him whip boys from Detroit and Cleveland in the semi-finals and finals in the Chicago Stadium. This showing changed the Benna family's fistic rating and Johnny now is the No. 1 glove man.

They Remember Taylor.

The youngster's fistic accomplishments in Chicago areused more interest among Terre Haute citizens than any athlete of this city has been able to claim since the days when Bud Taylor first leaped to fame as the Terre Haute terror. Thousands of fans tuned in on W-G-N on the final night of the Tournament of Champions.

The Benna brothers are of sturdy Slavic stock. Their father, Mike Benna, settled in Terre Haute after coming to this country and both boys are natives of this city. As youths both attended St. Meinrad's Catholic seminary in southern Indiana, where they starred in sports. It was here that Johnny picked up his first pointers on boxing.

He's Quite an Athlete.

Johnny returned to Terre Haute for his senior year in high school at Garfield and immediately became a regular on both the football and basketball teams. He was graduated in 1935 and immediately turned to a career of amateur boxing, although retaining the hope of some day going to college and eventually taking up a coaching career.

In his boxing Johnny has had the solid support of his father, himself a good boxer in his day. Since returning from New York with the Golden Gloves team, the youth has accepted a position with an Evansville brewery.

Start English Amateur Golf TourneyToday

LEEDS, England, April 24.—(AP)—Leonard Crawley, generally recognized as the finest amateur golfer in England, is the favorite to win the 13th English amateur tournament at the Moortown Golf club, starting tomorrow.

The tournament has attracted unusual interest this year because it is the first and only real test of strength for the British Walker cup players before they play the United States at St. Andrews, June 3 and 4.

Though the field was restricted to players with handicaps of three instead of five, as in other years, 231 players, a record entry, will compete.

25 Draw Byes.

Of this total, 25 players, including Crawley, drew first round byes. Only part of the first round will be completed tomorrow. On Tuesday the second and third rounds, both of 18 holes, will be played. The fourth and fifth and the sixth and semi-final rounds will be played Thursday and Friday and the 36 hole finals will decide the champion Saturday.

Frank Pennink, the defending champion, is in the first quarter, probably the easiest bracket. He meets C. D. Greenhalgh tomorrow.

The second quarter includes two former holders of the title: T. A. Bourn, 1930, and Stanley Lunt, 1934, and two Walker cup nominees, Johnny Graham and J. E. Gent, the Yorkshire champion.

Tolley and Stone Stand Out.

Cyril Tolley, twice British amateur champion, and Charlie Stowe, the Midlands public links player, are the outstanding players in the third quarter. A victory for Tolley this week would create quite a problem because the English champion almost surely will be given a place on the British Walker cup team, and as a member of the Walker cup selection committee, Tolley is not eligible to play in the matches.

The other players of note in the third quarter are Harry Bentley, the 1936 title winner; Kenneth Scott, the Oxford captain, and Ivor Thomas, the only left-handed player nominated for the British Walker cup team.

With Crawley in the last quarter are Rex Hartley, G. G. D. Carter, who led Cambridge to victory recently over Oxford, E. Bromley-Davenport, and S. E. Banks. Only two English players of note who are not entered are John Langley and D. H. R. Martin, both Walker cup probables.

BARNARD, FAMED WORLD OVER AS SCULPTOR, DIES

Stricken 2 Weeks Ago; Refused to Quit Work.

New York, April 24.—[Special.]—George Grey Barnard, world famed sculptor, died today of heart disease at the age of 74. He became ill two weeks ago while working on a creation which was to have been a gigantic statue of Abel, stricken with the realization of the treachery of Cain.

Despite the warnings of family, friends, and his physician the gray haired, stocky sculptor refused to lay aside his work until he became so ill that removal to a hospital was necessary.

Studied in Chicago.

Barnard studied at the Chicago Art institute, and became famous before he was 25 years old.

From 1870 to 1877 he attended Central school in Kankakee, Ill., and last year sent a representative to the school to set up fifty plaster casts of his most famous works. Although there was some controversy about the draping of numerous male figures, the sculptor himself never entered into it.

His Works in Museum.

Barnard, whose statue of Lincoln as a homely, earth-sprung man caused a controversy when it was unveiled in Cincinnati 21 years ago, would have seen his collection of Gothic art opened to the public in a new building at the Cloisters in Fort Tyron park had he lived until next May 10. This collection was given to the Metropolitan Museum of Art by John D. Rockefeller Jr., who bought it from Barnard several years ago.

Surviving Mr. Barnard are his widow, Edna Monroe Barnard; two daughters, Miss Vivia Barnard and Mrs. Barbara MacGregor, both of Waterford, Conn., and a son, Monroe Barnard, who lived with him.

I. C. SYSTEM'S MARCH INCOME BELOW YEAR AGO

But Operating Net in Quarter Is Higher.

Net operating income of the Illinois Central system in March fell below that for the corresponding 1937 month for the first time this year, according to the road's earnings statement yesterday. The March net operating income totaled $1,055,715, a decrease of $1,171,404 from March of last year. Gross revenues of the system amounted to $8,584,538, a drop of $2,369,810 from a year ago.

In February net operating income was $887,118, against $440,425 last year, and in January it was $1,248,167, against $400,706.

For the first quarter the system had net operating income of $3,191,000, an increase of $122,749 over last year. Gross revenues were $25,528,154, a drop of $3,229,192.

Texas Gulf Earns Less.

The Texas Gulf Sulphur company reported net earnings in the first 1938 quarter of $1,839,687, equal to 48 cents a share on the capital stock, compared with $2,100,050, or 55 cents, in the 1937 first quarter.

Increases in wages, material costs, and taxes, coupled with reduced revenues in the last half of 1937, were responsible for the poorer earnings showing made last by the Wabash Railway company, the road's receivers informed stockholders in the annual report submitted yesterday. The receivers are Norman B. Pitcairn and Frank C. Nicodemus Jr.

Net Loss Larger.

As previously reported, the Wabash had 1937 net loss of $3,051,791, compared with a deficit of $1,280,782 in 1936.

B. F. Goodrich.

Investors' Guide: Your comments on the B. F. Goodrich company would be appreciated.—L. C. G.

Answer: Although the production of tires and tubes is the most important business of the B. F. Goodrich company, much progress has been made in development of outlets for other rubber products such as shoes, mechanical goods, druggists' sundries, and various hard and soft rubber articles. Rubber goods other than tires and tubes now account for about one-third of total sales. The total number of rubber articles produced now exceeds 30,000 items.

More than half of Goodrich's tire sales represents replacements and the remainder is sold to automobile manufacturers for use on new cars. General Motors corporation, the leading customer, has in some recent years bought 25 per cent of Goodrich's total tire output.

Goodrich announced in 1937 that it had developed a new type cotton tire cord which it claims will greatly increase the life of heavy duty tires. Early this year the company started selling a small truck tire which is said to have oil resistant qualities. The new tire was designed for small trucks and trailers used in intra-plant hauling.

Hood Rubber Company, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary, is one of the largest manufacturers of waterproof and canvas footwear. Other associated and affiliated companies are engaged in various branches of the rubber industry throughout the world.

Operations were forced into the red last year by a writedown of $5,652,935 for losses on inventories of raw materials on hand, on commitment, and material content of unfinished and finished goods on hand. Rubber shares declined throughout most of 1937 after reaching a high in late March. Earnings in recent years:

The company had 412,031 shares of $5 preferred and 1,303,255 shares of no par common stock outstanding. Total assets were 135,435,671 at the end of 1937. Current assets were $75,428,910, compared with current liabilities of $14,107,701. Common dividends totaled $1 a share in 1937. No dividends have been paid so far this year.

Surface Lines Will Lay Off 500 Workers

The Chicago Surface Lines is dropping 500 extra trainmen from its pay rolls because of decreased business, Guy A. Richardson, president, announced yesterday. It is the first time since the beginning of the depression in 1930 that the lines have had to resort to a layoff, he said.

Richardson emphasized that the dropping of the extra trainmen, who were added to the force early in 1937 when business was improving, would not affect the lines' service.

Providing More Service.

"At present," he said, "176 car miles are being operated per 1,000 revenue passengers carried; at this time in 1929, our peak year, we were operating 149 car miles per 1,000 passengers. In other words, we are now providing 18 per cent more service on the basis of the number of passengers."

Richardson said that gross receipts have been running about $10,000 a day less than a year ago.

"In the first quarter of this year," he said, "surface lines gross earnings were below the gross for the first quarter of 1932, the worst year of the depression. At the same time, net receipts were 43 per cent less mainly due to higher wage rates and social security and other taxes.

Spreading Work Is Burden.

"Layoffs were avoided in 1932 by agreement of the men to a spread-the-work policy. At this time, however, there is an unusually large extra list and to provide work for all under any spread-the-work plan would be an undue hardship on the entire operating force. Consequently, there seems to be but one thing to do—to lay off the men who were hired in anticipation of improvement in conditions which failed to materialize."

FEDERAL RULE OF TRANSPORT IS ADVOCATED

One central governmental authority for the regulation of the nation's transportation system, including railroads, air lines, highways, and waterways, was recommended yesterday as a means of saving the system from government ownership.

The recommendation was made by the Transportation Association of America, which submitted to its members and to the country for consideration a proposed transportation policy based on three years of study. The association is a voluntary organization of corporations and individuals in varied fields.

The report said that the ills threatening the nation's transport facilities will inevitably make the government the owner and operator of the entire system, unless promptly corrected. The ills have arisen, it said, from the lack of a complete, consistent policy.

ONE OF BIGGEST U. S. CROPS OF WHEAT IN SIGHT

Recent Heavy Rains Aid Prospect.

Recent heavy rains, following above normal precipitation in March, have resulted in a prospect for one of the largest aggregate wheat crops ever harvested in the United States, and with ample moisture final returns may reach the 952,000,000 bushel yield of 1919, latest reports indicate.

Official information from Texas and Oklahoma indicates the damage to winter wheat from the early April cold wave was less than expected, and with the general betterment in other states the department of agriculture believes the May 1 estimate on the winter wheat crop may be around 750,000,000 bushels, or 25,000,000 bushels in excess of the April 1 prospect. Last year's harvest was 685,000,000 bushels.

Seeding of spring wheat in the American northwest is reported as practically completed, and in many sections field work was finished about two weeks ahead of last year, giving the crop a better chance of escaping damage from black rust.

Seeding of oats and barley is practically completed.

An active export demand featured the corn market last week.

The ranges of prices on grain future contracts last week follow:

STEEL OUTPUT RISES SLIGHTLY, BUT SALES LAG

Steel ingot production rose half a point last week to 32.5 per cent of theoretical capacity, but there were no indications of larger volume of buying, the magazine Steel said yesterday.

"Immediate prospects are for a continuation of the present rate of activity," the review said. "Some observers believe the peak for the first half of this year has already been reached, the early part of April being the highest point in production.

"While inventories of steel consumers have been reduced materially, some having cleared their accumulations, a survey by sellers reveals that stocks are still large in the case of others. Continued absence of the various branches of the automotive industry from the market removes an important factor in demand and signs indicate that little buying will be done for that outlet before mid-year."

Scrap prices continued to decline last week, resulting in a decline of 17 cents in Steel's composite of steel making grades to $12 a ton.

Kelly of Fair, Resigning, Will Visit in Europe

"There's no fun like work."

D. F. Kelly, State street merchant for more than fifty years, likes that motto, and in keeping with it he will be reelected a director of The Fair store at the annual stockholders' meeting tomorrow, when he resigns as president.

D. F. Kelly.

"I borrowed that motto from Gordon Selfridge [noted merchant] in London," Kelly said. "I still believe in it. So, not only will I continue as a director, but I intend to be an active one. I've always enjoyed business."

Free to come and go as he pleases, Kelly said, he will devote more of his time to civic enterprises. He has accepted the chairmanship of the citizens' advisory committee to the county board, which is studying the County hospital management problem.

His attention will be on charitable hospitals during a forthcoming European trip which will last several months. He will leave for Norway June 28 and also will visit England and Ireland, returning several months later. In Ireland he expects to see President De Valera, with whom he is acquainted. With him will be Mrs. Kelly.

Kelly will continue as president of the Catholic Charities of Chicago, a post he has held since 1918, and as vice president and member of the executive committee of the community fund.

Keeping Meat Frozen.

Meat that is to be held indefinitely is kept frozen at from 10 to 25 degrees above zero. Even though held in storage for many months, the meat does not lose in quality if it was in good condition when put into the freezer and was properly handled in the process of being frozen. The appearance of meat not properly handled in freezing sometimes cuts its price.

In Illinois, for example, the law permits packers to hold frozen meat for twelve months. A state inspection is made at the end of that time, and if the meat is in perfect condition an extension of time may be obtained should the packer so desire. Actually, however, very little meat is held in freezers more than a few months, at most, because of the cost. Usually the time is a few weeks.

The government of New Zealand, which sells much frozen meat, has made exhaustive tests covering the freezing, storage, and transportation of lamb. It found that hydrolysis and oxidation of the fat of carcasses held at 14 degrees Fahrenheit for eighteen months was very slight and, in the case of oxidation, certainly much below that required to affect flavor. It found little change to be expected in chemical properties of lamb or mutton stored for a year or more under a temperature constantly below 17.6 degrees Fahrenheit.

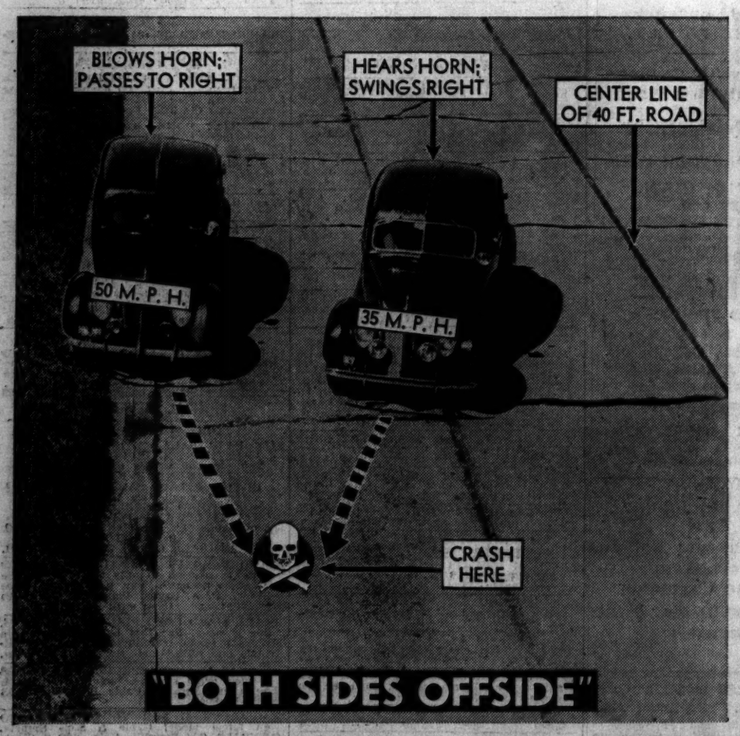
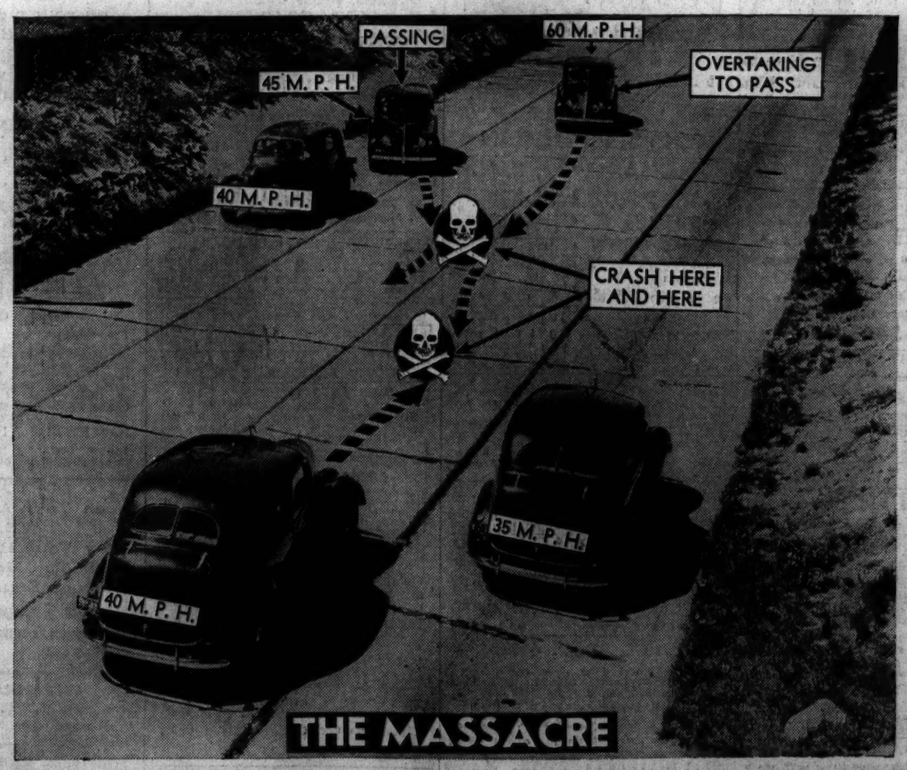
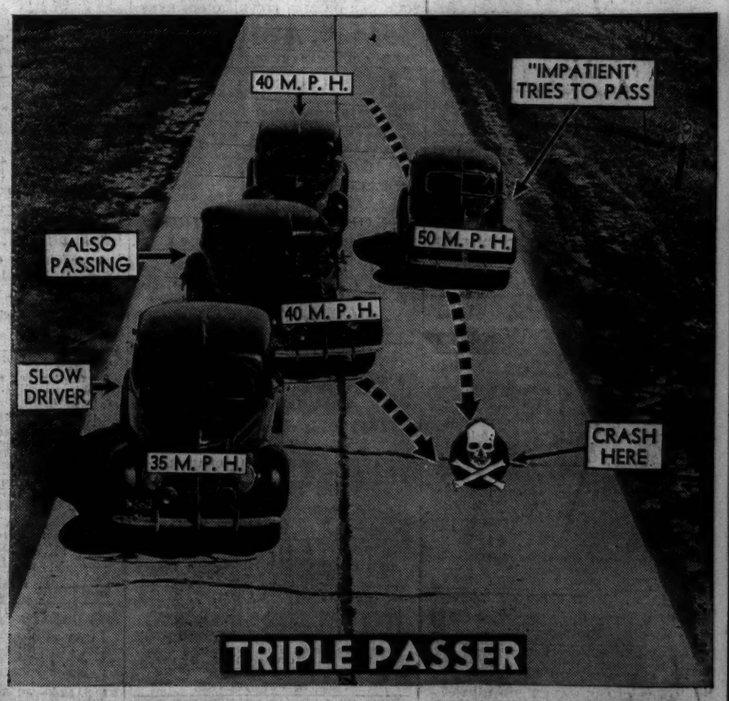
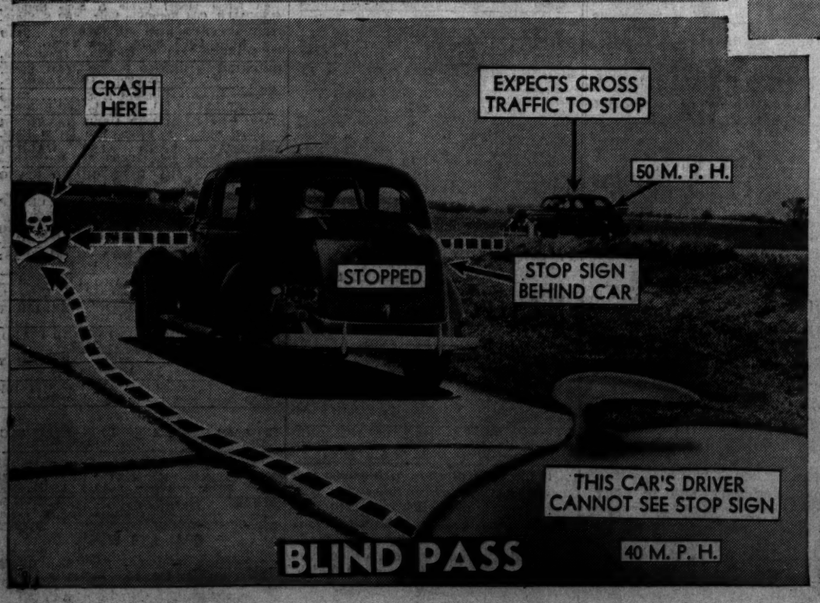
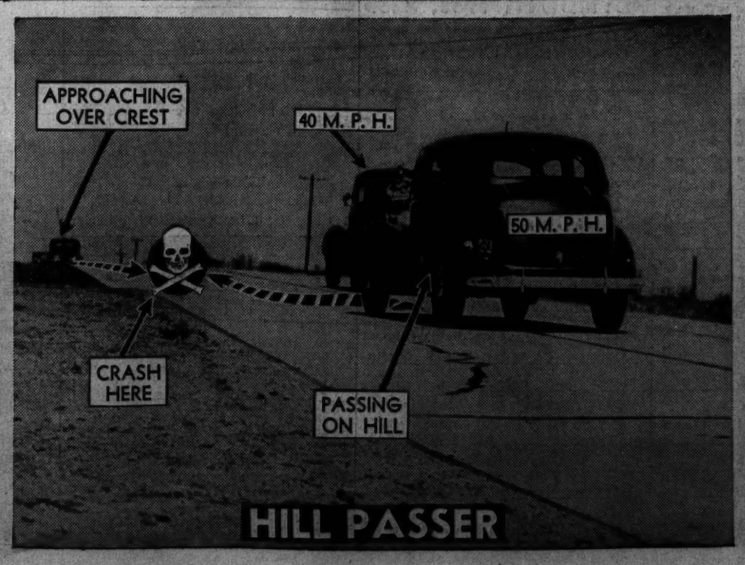
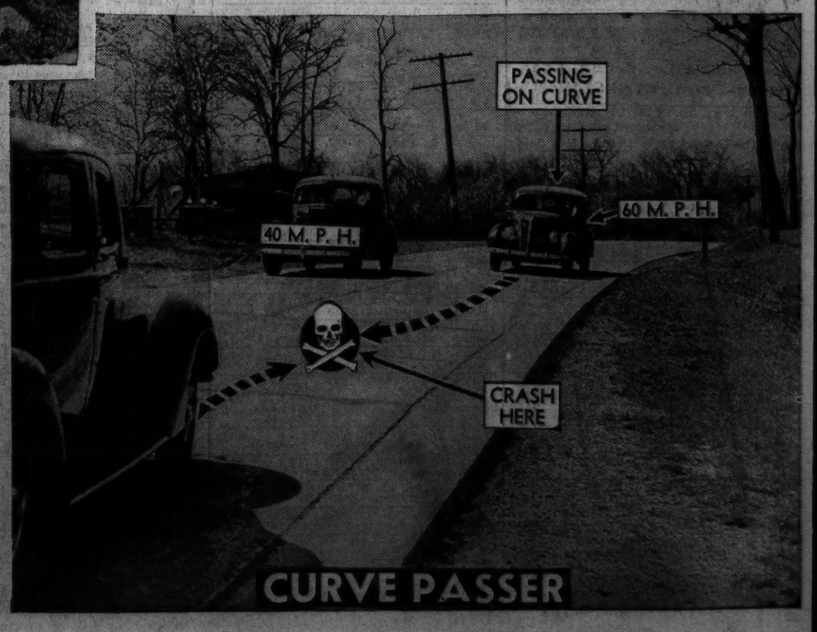
Six Common Hazards Motorists Will Face on the Main Highways with Beginning of Heavy Week-end Driving Season












Six object lessons in the dangers which motorists will be facing on the arterial highways now that the season of heavy week-end driving is beginning. They also warned autoists who wish to drive slowly and take in the view to use side roads for their excursions, where there is more scenery and less danger.
